School board outlines facilities' needs

By Susanna Forrester
Reporter

On Monday, Jan. 8, at a special called school board meeting, members discussed plans for improving Macon County school facilities over the next five years.

Over the next five years projected enrollment for Macon County Schools is expected to increase by seven percent and that means the county's campuses need to be ready.

As of the 2006-07 school year a total of 4,330 students are enrolled in the 10 schools in the system, but by 2011-12 board members speculate that number will increase to 4,752. However, Highlands School's total enrollment is not expected to increase, they said.

Funds for subsequent additions, repairs and renovations will come from QZAB funds, the NC Lottery, the sale of the old Otto School, and unallocated public school building capital funding with a hopeful 25% match from the county.

Targeted schools, are Franklin High School, Macon Middle School, Highlands School, East

The Macon County Commission has heard all it's willing to hear in the way of reasons from the Health Department pertaining to the backlog of septic permits.

Affordable housing plans begin

Affordable housing is one thing Highlands can't seem to offer its residents, but over the next several months, a newly appointed committee will seek ways to remedy that situation.

On Monday, Jan. 8, Highlands Affordable Housing Committee, with members appointed by Mayor Don Mullen, met in the boardroom of the Hudson Library.

Present were Committee Chair Mary Ann Sloan, Pat Boyd, Lee Hodges, Christie Kelly, Ginger Slaughter, Bill Nellis and Dick Lawrence. Not present was Jill Montana.

Mayor Don Mullen

The Recreation Committee of the Board of Commissioners has struggled recently with the issue of use of the Civic recreation facility for various shows.

When one looks at the situation carefully, it becomes very complicated. We do not want purely commercial ventures used there but agree that certain not-for-profit ventures are acceptable.

However, the discussion gets down to how much of purely recreational activity are we going to allow to be taken away from the youth and others in town for what many times is a commercial venture under the umbrella of a not-for-profit sponsorship.

There is agreement that there are only three or four months in the year that we would allow this and the time should be limited to three or four days for each event. The summer months are not appropriate for this use because of heavy recreational activity in the gym. However, September, October, March and April (before and after basketball season) would be acceptable and should be limited to three, maybe four days.

Specifically, the Playhouse use of the civic center sponsoring an antique show was turned down at the last Town Board meeting because they were requesting a week, although September was an agreeable month for that use. If they would reduce their requested use to three or maybe four days, then I think the Board of Commissioners would consider letting them have it.

The Recreation Committee is working on some overall written policy for use of the center to be fair to all concerned. It is a much more complicated issue when one considers

Board's decision a disservice to Highlands

Dear Editor,

The January 3 Town Board hearing on the use of the Civic Center resulted in a real disservice to the business community of Highlands, its residents and visitors.

By voting down the Highlands Playhouse Antique Show the commissioners killed (the Mayor's words-not mine) a jewel of an event that was enjoyed by hundreds of people who came from all over the Southeast. It is an event that benefited the Playhouse as well as being a financial success for the restaurants, hotels, inns and the local merchants and an event that could become an annual tradition that Highlands could be proud of.

The Board was so afraid of offending some one person, they disallowed a very successful venue that benefited everybody.

I would hope that the request from the Playhouse could be revisited at another meeting and more time and thought put into a compromise, instead of flip conversation about "witches and warlocks" and unscrupulous nonprofits who might descend on Highlands in mass. This is a matter that deserves more serious consideration.

Love and kindnesses deeply appreciated

I want to write to tell people how touched and grateful I am for the outpouring of love and appreciation I and my family experienced upon the death of my husband, Alex Redmountain.

He loved living in this town, small enough to be known by so many, through his writing and other connections. He often said he felt "well used."

Thank you, Kim, for providing him a forum; thank you Kim and Henry for beautifully written tributes (and he basically agreed with Henry's position eschewing mechanical longevity) and thanks to all the folks who sent love and support.

In Peace,

County sponsoring drug discount card

Macon County is joining 510 counties nationwide in a discount drug card program for its citizens.

At the Jan. 8 Macon County Commission meeting, Jane Kimsey, director of the department of social services, presented the program which is sponsored by the National Association of Counties.

The Prescription Discount Card Program gets recipients 20% off the retail price of prescription drugs.

"This is primarily for the uninsured and the underinsured," said Kimsey. "Even those in the Medicare D donut hole," she said.

The discount card program started as a pilot program in 2005 with 17 counties across the nation. It's grown to include 510.

All county residents regardless of age, income or existing health coverage may use the cards. There is no enrollment form, no membership fee and no restrictions or limits on frequency of use. Cardholders and their family members may use the card any time their prescription isn't covered by insurance at any pharmacy anywhere.

"There are 5,700 chains and independent drug stores participating," she said.

Cards indicating the recipient is a Macon County resident will be distributed at all Macon County public libraries, Macon County Senior Services, Macon County Social Services in Franklin, Highlands and Nantahala, through the Medication Assistance Program, Angel Medical Center and Highlands-Cashiers Hospital.

A fact sheet will be distributed with each card including the National Association of Counties toll free telephone number and website for assistance with the program. Macon County can't offer information or assistance with any questions regarding coverage or particular drugs. All questions must go to NAC.

The county expects to disburse 10,000 cards begin-

Citizens document the silting of Cullasaja and area properties

Developers at RiverWalk continue to battle with the silt allegedly leaving the property.

The Town Board, members of the Mirror Lake Improvement Association and adjacent property owners the Daughtrey's, continue to keep a watchful eye on the project.

Planning Board member Pat Taylor and Town Board Commissioner Hank Ross made a visit to the RiverWalk area along the Cullasaja by canoe and on foot Jan. 1 following the rain event of Dec. 31, 2006. "I made the trip as a concerned citizen," said Ross.

In an email to the Planning Board and Town Board he wrote: "I believe that additional silt has migrated from the River Walk property to the Cullasaja River and neighboring properties," said Ross. "Please let me know what additional information is necessary to apply an additional notice of violation."

Meanwhile, Liz Daughtrey, said RiverWalk is a mess and DENR isn't doing a thing.

"The townspeople need to get in an uproar about this and demand the town take action," she said. "I have gotten two falsehoods told to me from DENR. One was that verbal approval was given for the upper pond above the trout stream and the second that they were coming to Highlands to meet with the Mirror Lake Improvement Association. I don't know what is the truth."

Mayor Don Mullen says the town is still struggling with the RiverWalk situation concerning silt drainage into the Cullasaja River and Mirror Lake.

Should I learn Spanish or Arabic?

I always thought, no matter what, I would be well planted under eight feet of dirt by the time I would be required to make a decision on language change.

I admit I have not had the patience to read the entire novel "The Rise and Fall of the Roman Empire" but I have read enough excerpts to realize our country is on the same path. I thought we had lots of time before we collapsed but now my cynical brain tells me we are on a much faster track. Like Rome, our modern day Senators already have their little boys to frolic with; we call them pages.

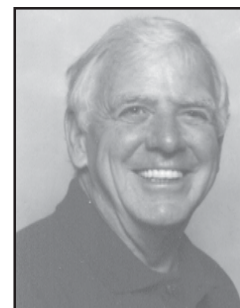

I used to feel sorry for my children and grandchildren, but now I am feeling sorry for myself as well. Here are my issues.

Will the many Hispanic folks entering America overwhelm and overthrow our form of life before or after the Arabs send us to our eternal 72 virgins? Oops, did I get that mixed up? Is it only lunatic Islamic radicals that get the virgins? I hope so because my greatest fear is that 72 virgins will be waiting for me at death. Can you imagine? For sure, none of them ever lived in Miami.

While Congress fiddles, our nation twiddles. Other than senators and congressmen, is there any American out there that doesn't believe the terrorists will send us a nuclear bomb the minute they are capable of doing so? Are we aware that could happen this year? If there is such a person, call me as I have beautiful Beirut view property to sell you.

We are a nation in decline, morally and spiritually. I don't think most Americans realize just how fast we are failing. We call ourselves a Christian nation, founded on Christian beliefs, but we all know that's a bad joke. Sadly, God seems to be on his way out in America. We had a president getting oral sex in the oval office, for crying out loud, and Americans loved him. He could have won a third term if it were permitted. We are a corrupt nation hated or resented by most of the world. So was Rome. Is it time to circle the chariots or is it too late?

If I survive the nuclear holocaust from the Arabs, I have plans. I will open a burqua shop in Miami, selling strictly to Hispanic folks since that's all that's there anyway. Oh, here's a thought. Have you ever noticed all the bleeding hearts in our country have conveniently isolated themselves away from all the turmoil going on? Why is that?

Soooo....after much hand wringing, I have made a decision to learn the Arabic language and here is why. Once our nation crashes, everyone not born here will be heading for our borders to escape, relinquishing control to the Arabs. Of course, by then we will have built a great wall and it will be difficult for anyone to get out.

So, this week, the little missus and I are headed for Dubai in the Middle East. We will attend Arabic school and the little missus will learn to make burquas at the Al Fonz Ca Boom Ali 'Aliyy School of weaving. Loosely translated, this means, I "knew" your sister as a child.

Like Henry Ford's model T, burquas usually come in black. My li'l missus looks awesome in basic black. Wait...have you seen the new look in Afghanistan? Gun powder blue burquas with blood stains are the rage.

Before attending Arabic school, I have been studying on my own, learning important phrases that will allow me to get around the Middle East. For example, "auto arraregh dvateman mamo sepaheh-hast" means "It is exceptionally kind of you to allow me to travel in the trunk of your car." Here's another important phrase. "Fashal-eh tupehman na degat mano goftam cheeshayeh mohema rajebeh keshavarehman" which means, "If you will do me the kindness of not harming my genital appendages, I will gladly reciprocate by betraying my country in public." Since those are my favorites, I won't bore you with more.

I will not be able to send you reports on our progress as everything is censored, especially me. You'll just have to wait until I return....maybe.... if I do. Oh, I almost forgot, I plan on meeting with the head Sheik to tell him how narrow minded our Congress was in not allowing his nation to take over our entire port system. Silly us, it will belong to them soon anyway.

Will the real expert on creation please stand up?

Last summer, I attended a lecture by John Spong, retired Presiding Bishop of the American Episcopal Church. He caught my attention by saying that in the time of Christ, "virgin births were a dime a dozen." He claimed that whatever divinity Jesus possessed had been achieved through his humanity, man made God. He delivered a crushing body blow when opined, "the Easter experience, whatever it was," had occurred months or even years after the crucifixion of Jesus, not on the third day, as I had been taught.

A question and answer session followed the presentation. The questions confused me, let alone the answers. I never trust a query that begins, "In terms of..." This was pretty startling stuff to me, a guy who hasn't made up his mind about Santa and who figures the chances of the existence of Bigfoot are no worse than 50/50. The Loch Ness monster comes in around 70/30 mostly because it is easier to hide under water. My only previous exposure to progressive religious thought had been with a church study group, which I attended only once, which explored the nature of God. Ideas of the Almighty included an electromagnetic force, a female, and a poorly described author of the Big Bang. None bore any resemblance to the kindly, but stern, father figure which many of us worship.

I told Alex Redmountain about the Spong lecture. I should not have been surprised to learn that Alex and Spong were good friends and that, according to Alex, the stuff I had heard at the lecture was about 25 years out of date. He didn't tell me what is currently being taught in progressive seminaries, but he assured me that it differed dramatically from what was being said from the pulpit.

If true, I wondered why there should be such a gap between what clergy people were taught at progressive seminaries and what they preach on Sunday morning. Maybe they don't believe what they were taught or maybe they understand that deification of God would empty a church quicker than a fire alarm.

It's hard for me to imagine that preachers would preach something they don't believe for the sake of job security, but then I'm a Bigfoot guy.

Why would people call themselves Christians if they reject the divinity of Christ? Why not houses of worship to Ghandi, Mandela, or M. L. King, Jr.? All good men, all sacrificed greatly, suffered terribly, and each accomplished great things.

Why attempt to reform Christianity to incorporate the belief that Christ is not God? Why not fold the tents, convert the cathedrals to art museums, and sleep in on Sunday mornings? Revere Christ as holy man? Sure. Respect his contribution to ideals of love, justice, and morality? Absolutely. But worship? We don't need Christ to define goodness, although he may be the best example.

Humanists and deists have, for centuries, expressed and embraced ideas of human dignity and equality, influenced, I suspect, as much by Greek philosophers and, in more modern times, Thomas Jefferson as by Jesus Christ. I just don't get it.

If, as progressive religious thinkers believe, Christianity is woven on a loom of myth and fairy tale, then let's move on. I can't imagine that churches could be converted to worship a prime mover, electromagnetic force, or alternating current, all of which are all incomprehensible to me.

It should be pretty clear that I don't presume to know the truth of creation or the secrets of the universe, but here is a flash. Neither do you. I imagine great thinkers, intellectuals, clad in turtle neck sweaters and Burkinstocks, chewing on chin hugging Meerscham pipes, rejecting any claim that is unfathomable to their considerable collected intellects. I can envision, with equal clarity, polyester fundamentalists, gathered in a bare walled, non-denominational church, pounding a Bible, and agreeing that all truth is contained within its pages.

We just don't know who is right, and depending on the validity of the concept of an after life, may never know. So let's live together and respect the other's right to believe what he or she wishes.

One big advantage of the progressives is that they are not out there trying to convert others to their way of thinking. One must go out of his way to even sniff what they are thinking. I wouldn't

• THE CONSERVATIVE POV •

What Happened?

In last week's column, I alluded that the control of the educational system as being in the hands of those wishing to destroy our society, either intentionally or residually. This week I intend to substantiate that statement.

Post-Dark Age public education started in Scotland in the mid-1500s as a result of the Protestant

Reformation, where education was made available by the church, free to the poor and inexpensive to all others. The church supported the educational system until 1633, when local taxation was imposed to help pay for schooling for all.

Prior to the invention and development of the printing press, there was little need for education since almost everyone was involved in farming or an enterprise related to farming. Basically, the church provided the only reason to leave the farm and the distribution of the Bible provided the impetus to learn to read.

The concept spread through Europe and if you travel there today, you will see large churches in small villages, every few miles, serving those who once walked to worship and later, to school there. There is no doubt that religion was the basis and foundation of public education.

To bring that thought closer to home, to quote Wikipedia on the subject; "While in colonial America, as in Europe, schooling was often regarded as a prerequisite for religion on the basis of the same Protestant Reformation concepts, the Northwest Ordinance provided that 'Religion, morality, and knowledge being necessary to good government and the happiness of mankind, schools and the means of education shall forever be encouraged'"

Sounds good and it was. I'm sure many have received an email showing a typical grammar school examination circa 1900. Just the questions boggled the mind and the range of content which students were expected to understand was at today's college level.

So what happened? In the 1940s, when I was in grade school, all the teachers were unmarried ladies, known as spinsters, who devoted their lives to their profession. Teachers' work days were unknown. They thought that teaching was their work and they did it every school day. They taught all day, did lesson plans and graded papers in the evening, and in my case, we were at 11th and 12th grade level in 6th and 7th grades. I was the beneficiary of a very good early education.

Enter the American Humanist Association, which included among its founding members, John Dewey, "the father of modern education". In the Humanist Manifesto I, which declared a totally secular "religion". It opens "The time has come for widespread recognition of the radical changes in religious beliefs throughout the modern world. The time is past for mere revision of traditional attitudes". It goes on to list 15 premises which espouse, among other things, man is God, and God is irrelevant. No creation, no afterlife, nothing but man, here and now.

1933 he and others issued

The 15 theses are followed by "Though we consider the religious forms and ideas of our fathers no longer adequate, the quest for the good life is still the central task of mankind. Man is at last becoming aware that he alone is responsible for the world of his dreams, that he has within himself the power for its achievement. He must set intelligence and will to the task."

Don't give up on me yet, the punch line is worth reading on.

In 1973, realizing their earlier professed ideals just weren't happening, the humanists decided they needed some mid-course corrections. Hitler, a believing humanist, blew the theory of peace and perfection to smithereens and crumbling socialism and communism regimes, based on humanism, just weren't delivering the intended nirvana. So, they issued Humanist Manifesto II.

Among other things, HM II professes: "We believe that traditional dogmatic or authoritarian religions that place revelation, God, ritual, or creed above human needs and experience do a disservice to the human species.

Promises of immortal salvation or fear of eternal damnation are both illusionary and harmful. They distract humans from present concerns, from self-actualization, and from rectifying social injustices."

(Hang in, the end is in sight).

"In the area of sexuality, we believe

Franklin, Cartoogechaye, Iotla, and Union.

At the meeting, described as more of a "work session than a standard meeting," architect Mike Watson presented a plan to renovate the aging East Franklin Elementary. The original wing of the school, constructed in the 1950s, has cracks in the bricks and mortar. Because the power demand was not as great in the 50s the classrooms are limited to one outlet each. All this needs to be updated, he said.

There are 10 portable classrooms at East Franklin which is seriously overcrowded and 4th and 5th grade students have to go through the custodial closet to get to their bathrooms. Board members agreed this issue must be addressed.

Watson said that the original renovation concept was to put two classroom additions on the original wing and eight classroom additions on the south wing. But this would "spread out the contractor" and create a dangerous environment for students, Watson claimed. The new revised plan would require tearing down the original 50s wing of the school and building a two-story building with eight classrooms on the first and second stories.

East Franklin will also be using QZAB funding, federal money used for interior renovations, to redo the cafeteria. If the project is approved with dual funding it would allow the board to create a timeline somewhere in the ballpark of summer 2007.

The funding required to complete the proposed construction and repair will come from the selling of the old Otto school which will close on or about Jan. 31. After the sale, a total of $525,446 will be available for immediate needs. The Highlands School will receive $12,000 of this money to repair the high school corridor roof which has been leaking.

Other funding will come from lottery funds. The HVAC system at Highlands School's kitchen and cafeteria will receive $40,000 of the total $77,099. The school has been using an early 70s model similar to the one used at the Nantahala School.

According to board members the system has been on "its last leg" for awhile.

To receive the total amount of funding needed to complete the proposed projects for Macon County schools the county will be asking for a 75/25 match from local government. Currently the Public School Building Capital Fund has $335,305.34 in unallocated funds. The school system will need an additional $109,000 from county government.

Other proposed projects for Macon County schools are a new HVAC system for Fine Arts Center, public toilets in the gymnasium, a concession stand and track repair all at Franklin School High School, a sewer generator at Macon Middle School, and roof replacement at East Franklin.

School Superintendent Dan Brigman said the proposed projects and their costs, as well as needed funding and their sources, are all preliminary and subject to the change.

At their Jan. 8 meeting, Macon County Commissioners said they knew about capital improvement plans for the school system and expected to be hearing from Superintendent Brigman in the near future.

Locals have hand in award-winning Rose Parade float

By Kim Lewicki

The Tournament of Roses Parade held in Pasadena, CA., on New Year's Day, is a 118-year tradition and involves thousands of people and hours of creativity before close to 100 floats travel down Orange Grove Road to charm and delight.

This year, Highlands' own Ann Tate and her husband John were an award-winning part of the affair.

A retired consumer science teacher from Highlands School, Tate has always spent her off-hours orchestrating events and baking elaborate cakes for friends, families and clients for weddings, baptisms and family reunions.

This year she decided to travel to Pasadena to try her hand at float decorating.

"I just wanted to do this, so I called and offered our services and they said, 'Come on!'" she said.

The last 10 days of the year are the most intense as organizations scurry to complete floats made completely of natural products – flowers, nuts, bark, fruit and vegetables – before judging and parade day. This year's theme was "Our Good Nature."

Designs for floats start as early as the second week of January and work continues nonstop until 11 p.m. Dec. 31. That's when all work stops and the judging begins.

On Dec. 28, the Tates flew out to Pasadena and basically took up residence in the Rose Palace – a huge hanger where scores of floats are assembled mostly by volunteers of various organizations.

She and John were there working with the Lutheran's Laymen's League. This was the League's 57th Rose Parade and this year's float was named "God's Great Nature."

The League used 30 people per eight-hour shift – 60 people a day the last 10 days – to complete the float that ended up winning "The Princess Trophy – The Most Beautiful Float Under 35 Feet." The League used 5,000 volunteer decorators to develop the end product – including the Tates.

There were 97 floats in this year's parade – the League's float was number 82.

Believing that all things in the universe flow from God's great nature, the group designed and produced an inspiring church setting, depicting human love, nature in colorful blossom and the beauty of animal life.

Everything on the float, including the windows in the church was made of flowers and other natural elements, said Tate. "The swans were made of coconut."

Flowers of all kinds and colors were used – 47,700 pink, white and red roses; and 92,000 other flowers including Gerber daisies – each of which were individually placed in vials and later stuck in place on the float. Though absolutely exhausting, Tate said she wants to do it again next year, only get there sooner so she can do more.

"The scents were wonderful and the camaraderie was really good," she said. "It was a culmination of a lot of talent and an unbelievable experience."

Though she will always offer her services for free to her "children," those she taught at Highlands School, now retired she's a bon a fide wedding planner, consultant and director. For more on her company Wedding Bells 4 U email weddingbells4u@verizon.net.

Ann and John Tate hold one of the hundreds of flats of flowers each in its own vial, which were used to assemble the Lutheran church's float. These are Gerber daisies. The float which was made entirely of natural products - flowers, nuts, bark, fruit.

The Lutheran Hour's float -- named "God's Great Nature" won the Princess Trophy for the "Most Beautiful Float Under 35 Feet." It is made completely of flowers, nuts, bark, even coconut.

Arthur Reynolds Potts and Ezra Herz were on court 8 minutes. Potts scored 2 points.

The Blue Ridge game set for Tuesday, Jan. 9 was cancelled due to inclement weather.

In her letter of recommendation, Dr. Lin Moore, director of PEP, wrote, "Ms. Smith leads in our academic focus at PEP in using age-appropriate thematic units that demonstrate interdisciplinary teaching at its best. The success that her students achieve, as they experience her teacher strategies and ideas, has become the gold standard for our program and for neighboring counties to emulate. Ms. Smith, master teacher and master professional, makes me proud as I observe her in action in the classroom. No challenge deters her from her strong belief that all students can learn."

Girls' Clubhouse serves at library

Kaylyn Billingsley and Lindsey Wagner were just two of the Girls' Clubhouse members who worked at the Hudson Library Friday, Jan. 5. Each week the club does community service projects in town. This week the girls will be selling baked goods to raise money for their trip to Charleston, S.C. in the spring.

Each member either has an interest in the subject due to personal dilemmas finding affordable housing, or just plain interested in the concept.

"Our members have a variety of backgrounds and interests," said Sloan. "Some have backgrounds in neighborhood planning and development."

In its first meeting, the group laid out plans to investigate all aspects of the affordable housing situation, including land, the type of housing, who it would serve and where it might be situated.

"We're looking at models of successful affordable housing projects in other communities, reading articles on the subject, and looking at websites," said Sloan. "The general consensus is that people who work in Highlands should be able to live here."

The definition of "affordable housing" is when a family pays less than 30 percent of its gross income for housing. "Given that definition, not many in Highlands live in affordable housing," said Sloan.

Sloan said there are so many aspects to investigate including what type of affordable housing might be developed – multi-family or scattered single-family units; where it might be located – in town or outside the town limits; who would assume responsibility for operations, maintenance and occupation criteria and whether it would be a public or a private venture.

If it's a public venture tapping the myriad of grants and various funding opportunities through state and federal agencies like HUD, Highlands Affordable Housing Committee would have to go through the county.

"As the county's housing authority, all funding requests for grants or low-interest loans will have to come through the county," said County Manager Sam Greenwood. "But the county will be happy to help any way it can as the lead agency or lobbyist in support of Highlands' plan. The county commission is dedicated to working on affordable housing county-wide."

Over the past year, the county has been working on becoming the designated housing authority for the county. The terms were finalized about in November when it took over the designation from the Macon Program for Progress.

However, if affordable housing in Highlands is a private venture, similar to the way the Old Edwards Inn and Spa Hospitality Group provided for its employees on N.C. 28, then Highlands would be free to take and use whatever monies offered by private individuals for such a project anyway it chooses, said Greenwood.

Once the committee comes up with a plan, it will go to the Planning Board which will in turn send its recommendation to the Town Board, presumably early summer.

Initially, the committee will be meeting twice a month.

The next meeting is January 26. Currently, at the mayor's request, the meetings aren't open to the public or the press, said Sloan.

that intolerant attitudes, often cultivated by orthodox religions and puritanical cultures, unduly repress sexual conduct. The right to birth control, abortion and divorce should be recognized.

"It also includes a recognition of an individual's right to die with dignity, euthanasia, and the right to suicide.

"We deplore the division of humankind on nationalistic grounds. We have reached a turning point in human history where the best option is to transcend the limits of national sovereignty and to move toward the building of a world community in which all sectors of the human family can participate.

"Thus we look to the development of a system of world law and a world order based upon cultural pluralism and diversity.

"These are the times for men and women of goodwill to further the building of a peaceful and prosperous world. We urge that parochial loyalties and inflexible moral and religious ideologies be transcended.

So what? What does all this have to do with anything? Here's what. Because, the American Humanist Association is in a coalition with the National Education Association to produce "Great Public Schools."

So when you scratch your head trying to understand why little Johnny shot up his school or you find condoms in Susie's backpack or they come up with one world ideas that you don't espouse or place the value of a human being with that of a chipmunk or what difference does it make, I'm just an advanced salamander anyway, ask the National Education Association (the teachers' union). They're in partnership with the American Humanist Association in creating "Great Public Schools."

The classroom has been turned into a battlefield in the war for young minds. The atheistic humanist influence is struggling to gain control of students' thinking and it's winning the fight. Mom and dad may have Christian conservative principals but they only see the kids a few hours a day while the government schools have them all day, sometimes from dawn to dusk.

How ironic. God created the reason for schools and now He's not welcome.

Wake up America, we are going down the drain - fast.

"The damage to the Daughtrey property has become a great concern also," he said. "The RiverWalk principals, through their lawyer, have filed an appeal of the fines imposed upon them, but we will continue to pursue payment."

He said the perceived indifference to the damage RiverWalk is continuing to cause, and the town's inability to stop it, is wrong. "That is inexcusable," said Mayor Mullen. "We are continuing to monitor the situation closely and produce photographic and video evidence of continuing violations during and after each significant rainfall."

On the morning of Jan. 9, Town Administrator Richard Betz said the measures set in place to control soil and erosion from leaving the site "appear to be working."

RiverWalk developers have hired several new firms to help them get the siltation under control. They are all working closely with Henry Lyngos, project manager of RiverWalk. The public relations firm of Jackson-Spaulling with offices in Atlanta and Athens, GA, has also been hired to "help change the perception of RiverWalk," said Glen Jackson with the firm.

pect something illegal was going on, said Public Information Officer State Trooper Louis Calato.

A consent to search was denied, so a drug dog was brought to the site and it "alerted on the vehicle," said Trooper Calato.

A subsequent search revealed 369 pounds of marijuana and one gram of cocaine.

The two were placed under arrest and transported to the St. Tammany jail where they were booked and charged a little after midnight.

Larry Gantenbein is being held on a $100,000 bond for possession with intent to distribute schedule I and a $250 bond for improper lane use.

Michael Gantenbein is being held on a $95,000 bond for possession with intent to distribute schedule I and a $5,000 bond for possession with intent to distribute schedule II. "He admitted the cocaine was his," said Trooper Calato.

Their arraignment hearing is February 28, 2007 in St. Tammany Parish. They have not bonded out yet, but "can as long as the judge determines they aren't a flight risk," said Trooper Calato.

On Jan. 9, the Good Year Tire and Auto on U.S. 64 east, co-owned by Michael Gantenbein, was closed and the personal property seized by the North Carolina Department of Revenue. "Pursuant to NC G.S. 105-242 the personal property here within has been seized for nonpayment of taxes," reads a notice on the window of the business.

Sheriff Robert Holland said on Monday, Jan. 8, his officers were called to assist Levy Officer M.R. Haney with the Dept. of Revenue with the seizure "to make sure all went smoothly at Good Year Tire and Auto," said Holland.

After a closed session at an emergency

Town Board meeting, Tuesday morning, Dec. 9, commissioners voted unanimously to fire Gantenbein from his position as Zoning Administrator, Town Planner, and Watershed Administrator.

Commissioners didn't give the reason Gantenbein was fired. "We can hire and fire at will," said Commissioner Amy Patterson.

Mayor Don Mullen said his termination was "due to a lot of things."

As in the past, Town Administrator Richard Betz will be acting Zoning Administrator until a replacement is found. Sonja Stewart, who has been assisting Gantenbein, will assist Betz.

The board will also enlist the contract services of an "expert" in soil and erosion inspections and violations out of Murphy, N.C. to help in the interim.

"We've realized for some time that we need help in this area, and have been thinking about using him," said Patterson.

Mayor Mullen said the town might even offer him the job as Zoning Administrator but Betz said based on his conversations with him, he's only interested in contract work at this time.

Nevertheless, commissioners said they will discuss the idea with him and see what happens.

Over the last nine years Highlands has employed four Zoning Administrators: Eddie Madden, Maureen Lackey, Christopher Shook and Larry Gantenbein. Gantenbein was hired March of 2002.

Commissioners also established a committee to look at the organization of the town's government. Commissioners Hank Ross and Amy Patterson will head the committee assisted by Commissioner Herb James. They said he has the longest history with the town government and can offer a lot of insight.

us exactly what you need to take place to cut this down to six weeks," he said. "We want a detailed report of your system in place, what is going on and then tell us what you can do with your present resources to cut this back to six weeks. If you can't do it with what you've got, tell us what you need."

Director of the Health Department Ken Ring gave what has become a monthly report on the status of the backlog. "The published increase in the septic application fees, effective July 1, 2006 stimulated a surge of applications which resulted in a backlog of more than 600 sites," read Ring from a prepared statement. "As of Dec. 31, this backlog has been reduced by 187 which includes the 487 new applications received during the same period."

At the October meeting both Ring and Environmental Specialist Barry Patterson, reported that the wait for permitting would be reduced to 2-3 weeks by February, March at the latest. Now Ring said it's back to the 8-10 week period and doesn't expect to be caught up until April at the earliest.

Commission Chairman Charlie Leatherman said from the sounds of things, it sounds more like a 16-20 even 18-26 week wait.

With two commissioners in the development business — Ronnie Beale who is in construction and Bob Simpson who is in heating and air-conditioning — Ring was clearly on the hot seat.

"This county depends on building, it's all we have," said Commissioner Simpson.

Commissioner Beale agreed. "When the county's government is costing people their livelihood, we have to fix it." He suggested grouping permit requests by type, or location and assigning inspectors that way.

has stopped pending septic permits.

Commissioner McClellan said concrete goals had to be set and the department needs some accountability.

Commissioner Beale also asked that a human be on the other end of the Health Department phone line. "People should be able to get a person and not an answering machine to help them when they call," he said. "We're holding their money and they have a right to know the status of their permit request."

County commissioners recently increased funding so more staff could be hired in the Environmental Health division but Ring says government requirements concerning extra training and certifying of already experienced and credentialed inspectors has tied the department's hands. He hopes to have all seven inspectors credentialed soon.

how many not-for-profits in Highlands may also want to use the facility, and we want to be fair to all. The easiest way would be to say no to all but that would be unacceptable overall. The final result of this process hopefully will be worked out soon, even at our next meeting, and the Antique Show could possibly still go on in a limited time frame this coming September. Another option would be to have the antique show in the Highlands School gym before school starts in August when their gym is not being used.

I might add that the pressure the Playhouse tried to put on the Commissioners by ads on the radio and in the newspaper which were inaccurate did not help their cause. I might also say that, contrary to the headlines in The Highlander newspaper this past week, the Board did not ignore the comments. It was a very good open discussion which I think will lead to resolution of these issues soon. Discussions like this are what our government is all about.

The first meeting of the Affordable Housing Task Force chaired by Mary Ann Sloan was held this past Monday and the process of studying the situation in our town was begun. In spite of some scepticism in the community I truly believe that we can come up with some solutions to this major problem. Other communities have done it quite well even in high price land situations, and we need to review how they have accomplished it and come up with a system and a process which meets our own particular needs. I consider this on the top of my list of importance this coming year. With proper planning and research a good plan is highly possible.

We are still struggling with the RiverWalk situation with silt drainage into the Cullasaja River and Mirror Lake. The damage to the Daughtrey property has become a great concern also. The River Walk principals, through their lawyer, have filed an appeal of the fines imposed upon them, but we will continue to pursue payment. Another problem in this situation is perceived indifference to the damage they are continuing to cause, and their inability to stop it. That is inexcusable. We are continuing to monitor the situation closely and produce photographic and video evidence of continuing violations during and after each significant rainfall.

THE SETUP:

The cube has 27 consecutive numbers in it, arranged in three layers with 9 numbers each. These numbers are arranged in a special pattern: For each layer, the sum of the three numbers in each row, column or diagonal, is 3 times its center number. Eight diagonals connect all 3 layers by running through the center number of the middle layer. Each diagonal contains 3 numbers equalling the total of the three center numbers. One of the diagonals is shown with circles.

THE CHALLENGE:

Start with the three center numbers for each layer and two other numbers. Now pour a cup of coffee, pick up a pencil and eraser and try to figure out where the other 22 numbers belong. Good Luck!

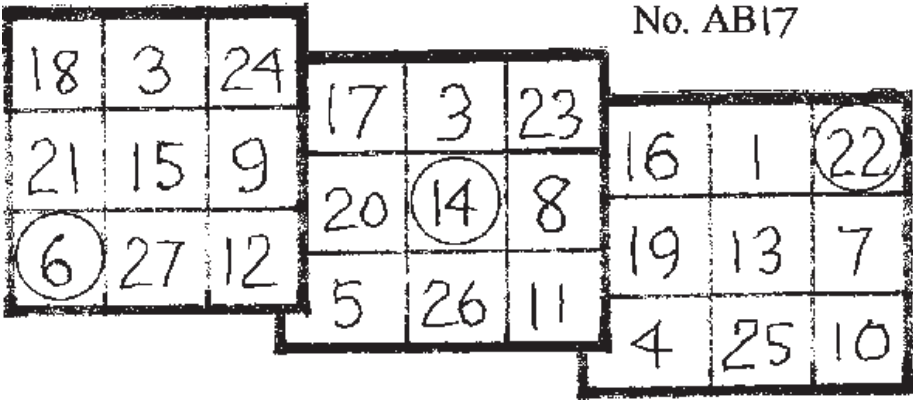

The first correct solution emailed earns a coupon for a FREE cup of coffee from Buck's Coffee Cafe on Main Street.

a new mind game

Threats to Chattooga River continue

The first boater trials on the headwaters of the Chattooga River's North Fork, held this past weekend, make plain the many problems that opening this section of wild and scenic river could entail, said members of Friends of the Upper Chattooga.

"The boaters are seeking to create new access points on a stretch of pristine water, which likely would further erode the especially wild natural resources of this area. There are so many dead and downed trees and logjams and big waterfalls across the river that paddlers cannot really navigate without creating numerous portage trails. These new trails are bound to destroy the natural beauty and habitats of this portion of the river. Some of the headwaters are so dangerous that inexperienced boaters likely would have a difficult time safely negotiating various cascades and falls. Emergency rescue efforts, in turn, would create even more of an access problem," said Friends.

"This is section of backcountry that many believe should remain as close to its natural state as possible," said Joe Gatins, a spokesman for Friends of the Upper Chattooga. "Unfortunately, the U.S. Forest Service and its consultants appear to be paying scant attention to this multitude of resource issues."

The Chattooga headwaters reach in question bisects the Ellicott Rock Wilderness and Rock Gorge Roadless Area, as well as the incredibly wild, Chattooga Cliffs section above the Old Iron Bridge on Bull Pen Road. These areas are among the few remaining wild places in the Georgia-North Carolina-South Carolina boundary area that still provide high-quality solitude and wilderness experience. It is used sparingly by hunters, hikers, sunbathers, photographers, swimmers, naturalists, scientists, anglers, picnickers, local families and heritage enthusiasts – all of whom access the area on foot.

Gatins called on local people in Rabun, Macon, Jackson and Oconee counties to let the government know how they feel about this unique area. "I really believe that when all is said and done, the people will want the North Fork's headwaters to remain zoned for foot travel only, to preserve their remoteness and wildness." Although the weekend boater test involved only 10 paddlers, they left a pretty loud and intrusive footprint," Gatins said. "They took up most of a parking lot with their vehicles and you could hear them yahoo-ing' hundreds of yards downriver."

Friends spokesmen said boaters already have free use of the lower two-thirds of the Chattooga River, which often get so overcrowded that anglers and other users opt to shun that part of the waterway. "Now, this new group of 'creek boaters' is trying to storm its way into a local treasure and shove traditional users out of their way," said Gatins.

Members of the public wishing to comment on the Forest Service study and the boating trials can do so via e-mail to jcleaves@fs.fed.us
