Stiehler throws hat in ring for Mayor

Last week Commissioner Brian Stiehler verified Face Book postings and rumors that he will be running for mayor this November 2013.

According to the Macon County Board of Elections, a Town

Commissioner may file for the Mayor seat and if elected as Mayor, the candidate would resign as Commissioner.

In November Mayor David Wilkes' seat and Commissioners Amy Patterson's and Gary Drake's seats are up for grabs.

If Stiehler is elected, it will be the first time in decades a mayor is not self-employed or retired. Stiehler is the golf course superintendent at Highlands Country

County approves budget

Grants most of additional requests

By Davin Eldridge

Following weeks of deliberation and debate, which proved contentious for two commissioners in particular, the Macon County Board of Commission voted 3-2 to finally approve an amended budget for the 2013-'14 fiscal year.

Throughout the month of June, commissioners wrestled with the hardships of increasing funding for several Macon County departments while facing state mandated reversions, a mending economy and Federal sequester.

Among the many hot topics, the granting of additional funds to several county agencies (including law enforcement, health and public safety) proved difficult for Commissioners Ron Haven and Paul Higdon, who ran on conservative platforms of fiscal respon-

French explorer-botanist leaves mark in Highlands

On Saturday, June 15, explorer-botanist André Michaux's 1787 inaugural foray into the North Carolina wilderness was commemorated with a state Archives and History marker.

The marker was planted on June 15, the very day Michaux landed in Highlands, though 226 years later, and is Highlands' fourth marker.

On this first trip to North Carolina, Michaux made his most important discovery, a plant so rare botanists didn't find it again

Planning Dept. says 'no' to OEI's off-premise event signs

At the May Town Board meeting, commissioners agreed to let Old Edward Inn's off-premise, directional sign at the corner of Arnold Road and NC 106 to stay until the July Town Board meeting which was supposed to give the Planning Board time to consider amending the current ordinance which prohibits such signage.

As it turned out, the issue wasn't on the June 17 Planning Board agenda and so wasn't discussed per se. According to Interim Planning and Development Director Josh Ward, the town's Land Use Committee – made up of Commissioners John Dotson and Eric Pierson – agreed with staff that amending the ordinance to allow OEI's off-premise sign would open a Pandora's Box.

"If we allow one, we would have to allow all and then there could potentially be signs everywhere," said Ward. "It's our recommendation to leave the ordinance as it is."

The issue will be discussed at the Thursday, June 20 Town

A dignified response?

Dear Editor,
Even though Wanda Drake responded to the wrong newspaper regarding my letter about her husband and his colleagues, why DID she dignify it with a response? Me-thinks she doth protest too much?

Should we change Highlands' name?

Dear Editor,
I would like to know why the Highlands Police Department is letting OEI security handle noise complaints. Is that legal? I don't believe it is.

The calls were made through the county emergency system 911 and an officer was specifically requested.

At 1:30 a.m., Saturday, June 8th, I was awakened by loud music, loud laughter and loud mouths at the Piermont Inn on South Street – an OEI establishment.

I called 911 and requested an officer be sent to stop the noise – not OEI security like before. I was told they only send an officer. But someone other than 911 sent OEI security. Who made that decision?

At 2 a.m., I had to call 911 again to inform them that the noise had not stopped, only gotten louder. I told them not to send OEI security again, but got OEI security, who had to call an officer to stop the noise.

Don't they realize that the security isn't capable of handling this type of situation?

This is the second time this has happened and was handled in the same way. OEI security, then the police.

I didn't see the call in the police report in this week's paper. Is this how OEI keeps their negativity out of the public view?

If the police department is going to let OEI security try and handle these calls, maybe we should eliminate the police department and save the taxpayers a lot of money.

Or even better, the town should have changed the name on the new gateway signs – then everything that OEI does would be legal and Larry, Moe and Curley could keep their positions with the town and still work for OEI.

About the 'big, bad' art & craft shows

Dear Editor,
I wanted to tell you that the photo of K-H Park on Pine Street on the editorial page in the May 30 edition of Highlands Newspaper was priceless.

It was one of the funniest things I've ever seen; I laughed 'til I cried!

I heard rumors while in town for the arts & crafts show over the weekend of June 1 that Hizoner the Mayor won't be running again this year. If true, that's probably the smartest thing he's ever done!

I was astonished at how strongly the local folks felt about the issue of the arts & crafts show in the park. In the past, I've often inquired of the locals about it and found that they knew nothing about it, which tells me that they don't read!

They are aware now.
I talked to several merchants along Main Street and found only one who felt that the show interfered with their revenue; most felt very welcoming to the vendors. Much credit goes to you, and I thank you.

Keep up the good work – I love your paper!

Nancy C. Taylor
Greenville, SC

Highlands and its visitors are missing out

Dear Editor,
My sisters and I always have a reunion in Clayton, GA on Memorial Day weekend. We go to Highlands to the craft show and shop in downtown Highlands and have lunch there.

When we arrived this year, there was no craft show. We were very dissapointed! We heard there was a show in Cashiers, so we went there.

The show in Cashiers was not of the quality of the Highlands show. There was nowhere to park and they charged admission. We still attended the show and ate lunch in Cashiers, but it just wasn't nearly as fun.

Then a friend sent me the Photo of the Week which ran in the May 30 edition of Highlands Newspaper which showed an empty park on Pine Street. It just seems a shame that you have caused the show to not be on Memorial Day weekend. It seems other people went to Cashiers, also. Your downtown merchants probably suffered from this decision.

The value of a Liberal education

Dear Editor,
Bob Wilson's recent column in a local publication condemning a liberal college education, is full of contradiction and misinformation. The point he tried to make was that today's very expensive college degree should be focused on a student's future earning potential. No one can disagree with that.

Mr. Wilson says he agrees with Governor McCrory that all college education should be focused on getting a job, not some silly liberal arts degree. The trouble with that idea is that no one knows what kind of a job he or she will have in 10 years.

A Bureau of Labor statics study reports that the average American worker will change jobs 11 times in his career. Many of these changes involve completely different kinds of employment. So if one goes to college and studies for a particular kind of job, chances are that within a few years that education will be worthless.

Of course a degree in computer science, or medicine will produce great job prospects, but few will become Doctors or engineers or scientists. The vast majority of future employees will need an education that will prepare them for many different kinds of jobs. They will need an education that will prepare them to think clearly, and be able to adapt to whatever jobs are available. That is the definition of a liberal arts degree!

Mr. Wilson can make fun of all the silly courses on "Dogs and People" he wants, but, if you end up working in a Veterinarians office that one class (likely a one semester, 3

Ian Richard Denham

Ian Richard Denham, son of the late Albert and Edith Denham, died unexpectedly on May 20, 2013. Born December 12, 1947 in the village of Morton, Lincolnshire, England, Ian grew up in Morton, and then in the nearby town of Bourne.

He leaves behind his beloved wife, Shelley, daughters Gillian Denham Jones, Megan Denham Vered and Joy Denham; sons-in-law Andrew Jones and Moran Vered, and two granddaughters, Ella and Kaylee Denham Vered. Ian is also survived by his sister, Iris Whitham, her husband Colin, their three children and grandchildren; and extended family members, Tom and Jane Warth, Charlyn Jackson, and many dear friends.

Ian was a world traveler in his early 20's. On a trip to Canada and the U.S., he happened to meet Shelley Jackson, and within six hours, they had decided to marry. Five months later on December 22, 1973, they did so, in Bourne. Ian then emigrated to the U.S., and lived in Cincinnati, Ohio, where Ian immediately realized that joining the Jackson family meant singing. With no training or experience in music, he good-naturedly joined the church choir, and sang for a number of events with Shelley, and her brother David and wife Char Jackson.

Ian and Shelley's three daughters – all of whom were born in Cincinnati – were his greatest joys. A close-knit family, they all shared a love of travel, nature, music, and a sense of fun and adventure.

In 1989, after many trips here, Ian and his family moved to Highlands, NC to work at a local retreat center. Ian's job as Facilities Director included the management of all aspects of the infrastructure of the 90+ acre facility and he supervised all new construction projects, and most of the renovation of older buildings himself, with staff and volunteers.

Music became an even more important part of Ian's life when he and Shelley met Tom and Jane Warth, and formed a quartet. Their close harmonies and unique blend gave voice to their mutual passion for social justice, embrace of diversity, and spiritual expression. Together, they traveled through much of the eastern United States, providing worship services, concerts and workshops. They had started recording their second C.D. in January, and had planned to complete it by the end of 2013. More recently, Ian sang in the First Presbyterian Church choir whenever his schedule permitted, and the church became a warm and loving home for both Ian and Shelley.

Ian's kind, gentle nature could only be rattled by mistreatment or mean-spirited behavior to his loved ones, lack of a strong and dependable work ethic, and waste of natural resources. Among the comments in the many loving cards and messages sent to his family upon news of his death, was this tribute: "The world lost a truly wonderful human being when he died. Ian brought goodness and gentleness to all who knew his cheerful spirit, and we are better for having known him!"

A Service of Remembrance and Celebration will be held at First Presbyterian Church at 1 p.m. on July 6th, 2013 – the 40th anniversary of the day Ian and Shelley met and decided to marry. A reception will be held after the service in Coleman Hall.

In lieu of flowers, the family requests donations to the First Presbyterian Church Bolivian Mission Scholarship Fund, and/or to the Highlands Cashiers Chamber Music Festival.

Dig a hole, fill it with water, and then throw money into it forever!

It has been reported that until a couple of weeks ago, the swimming pool at the Rec Park is losing 5,100 gallons of water a day. Do the math. At eight pounds per gallon, that means over 40,000 pounds of water containing chlorine and muriatic acid is seeping into our soil each day. Environmentalists should get their shorts in a wad on this one.

Trust me when I say I know a lot about how to waste money on swimming pools. In Florida, I'm currently supporting a swim program for a family of raccoons and a passel of land crabs. But my pool is not leaking.

Feedback is encouraged highlandseditor@aol.com

The worst thing Highlands could do is repair or build another pool that only gets used a few months a year. If Highlands can't find a way to build an indoor pool, then bring in the fill dirt and save taxpayers a bundle of money. I'm hoping one of Highlands many philanthropists (yes, we have many and no, I'm not one of them) will build and support an indoor pool. It would be a worthy cause and give our year-round locals a new athletic activity.

Look no further than the Mt. Laurel Tennis Club or the Senior Center in Tiger, GA, on how to run a pool program.

As one member told me, "It's soooooo fun to swim in a warm pool in February while watching it snow outside."

On an entirely different issue, our Town Board never seems to learn that if a person is hired with the title 'planner' or 'planning' in it, grab your wallet and run. Here's what planners usually 'plan' to do. These very nice people manage to get hired at a fairly decent salary while knowing little or nothing about the town they 'plan' to change, suggest ideas no one likes and eventually get themselves fired and move on to the next sucker. Aren't we due to hire another parking planner?

And how funny is this? When I first learned that our planner had been terminated, I thought some lunatic had shot the poor guy. Then I remembered I'm in Highlands and realized he had just been fired. Must be the cop in me; wadayathink?

Flying Solo

Each month, the Baby Boomers from my old high school get together to share a meal. Living so far away, I'd never attended one of these dinners. Having to clear out Maman's old storage unit recently meant that I was able to plan a trip which included both the painful chore of going through family furniture and memorabilia, and reconnecting with people from my old school days.

Every night until my trip, I watched as the weather became progressively worse and worse. By the time I got to Asheville Airport, it was downright nasty. Checking in is always an adventure, at least since I got Willard, my artificial knee (named for weatherman Willard Scott, since it is bald and can tell the weather).

With every flight, I get to do the Airport Macarena, palms up, feet here, feet there, jump, turn around. I wish they'd provide music, just to make it more interesting. The poor TSA ladies always apologize for the pat-down, which these days almost qualifies as a date night. "I'm just using the back of my hand," said the woman. What does it matter whether it's the back or front of the hand, when someone's going up the inside of your leg or checking out the under wiring of your bra? And always the same apology, "You know, it's because of 9/11," they explain with great solemnity. As someone who watched the Twin Towers go down from two blocks away, I don't really need someone in a small country airport reminding me about terrorism in New York.

The Asheville flight was delayed, and I got to Charlotte with just 20 minutes to make it to my gate, which was switched three times. The weather continued to be dreadful, as was the mood in the Charlotte airport. You see, President Obama was also in town that day. As he was just about to fly out, all air traffic was halted, adding to the backed up schedule due to the inclement weather. The airport was filled with hateful, vocal people – mostly men – who fumed and fussed about Obama. No one took a poll as to whether an airport shut-down for Bush would have made them equally angry, but I suspect not. Always the troublemaker, I piped up. "When I was flying into Jackson Hole Airport, they shut the place down for 24 hours for Dick Cheney. And HE wasn't even president." The humor of this comment is lost on everyone but several African Americans at the check-in desk, who smiled in my direction.

I finally got to Charlottesville Airport, almost two hours late, making it through the gate to be greeted by my mother's old driver, Bradley. The car trip from Charlot-

michiamead@aol.com

tesville to Waynesboro is one I've taken hundreds of times, but the sheer beauty never fails to impress me. And then, I arrive at the Holiday Inn, where a nice, big welcoming room - complete with Jacuzzi - awaits me! I unpack, and try to get a good night's sleep. The Jacuzzi wound up being a mixed blessing. I'd seldom used the ones up on Kettlerock, so I was clueless about how much bubble bath to use. Once in the tub, I found myself surrounded by bubbles up to my nose, and they only got bigger and denser by the minute. I turned on the jets, hoping the force of the water would flatten and dissolve the bubbles, but it only made them worse. Struck by the absurdity of the situation, I was overcome by a fit of giggles. If you laugh alone in a hotel room, does it still count?

The week sped by. On Saturday, I joined a group of gardeners weeding the grounds to make my old church look nice for the pastor's last day on the job. "It's kind of like having a face lift when your husband's already filed the divorce papers, isn't it?" I quipped. On Tuesday, I spent the day at Summit Square, visiting my mother's old friends and neighbors, including my former Home Ec. teacher, who is over 100. It felt good to be back there – almost as if I would go around the corner, and see Maman waiting there for me. I went to the storage unit, pulling up the metal gate with gusto. The sight of my mother's gardening boots waiting for her return reduced me to tears.

Then, finally, it was the night of the high school mini-reunion. I gazed at those faces that I might have recognized years ago in the school corridors, but now, drew a blank. Like most academic establishments, Waynesboro High School was divided into cliques, and ours was no exception. From early on, we were divided into two main groups – those of us with plans for college, and those who planned to go to work or get married immediately upon graduation. Those groups were subdivided by race, religion, neighborhood, sports affiliation, hobbies. In spite of being a small school, you could graduate without even speaking to some of the people in your own class year.

If reunions are good for anything, they give you a second chance to get to know folks you may have missed years ago. Life provides you with common ground that high school didn't.

We all joined in, reminiscing about the things that had mattered to us growing up – the local movie theaters, the drive-in, the places in town that made the best milk shakes, the small eatery that served hot donuts (the melodiously named Do-Nut Dinette), the restaurants in town (including the greasy spoon where the menu listed no prices – you paid what you thought it was worth or what you could afford). The first place to serve pizza – in rectangles! The two outdoor swimming venues – Shenandoah Acres and Sherando Lake. It was heartening and refreshing to see that, no matter what our family backgrounds, we all enjoyed similar things, felt the same awkwardness, worried about being popular, and rankled at being compared to our siblings.

It was amazing how much pleasure we took in each other's company, how easy and comfortably the conversation flowed. One man stared at me for most of the evening, his face suddenly breaking out in a large grin. "I remember you now!" he declared. "You were the smart girl!" I grinned across the table at him. "I still am," I said.

Game 7 of the NBA Finals should be a classic

tryanpotts@hotmail.com

It's one in the morning here, but it seems like the best time to write about an incredible game 6 that saw one of the best finishes in the NBA's illustrious history. There were heroes galore tonight, just enough officiating controversy to make it normal for the NBA, and most importantly, we are going to get a game 7 in what has been a fantastic series for both the casual fan and for basketball junkies alike.

Obviously, most of the focus in the NBA is on the players, and we will get to them in a minute, but this has been a fabulously coached series on both sides, as both Gregg Popovich and Erik Spoelstra have battled back and forth making adjustments to one another's schemes. Game 6 saw more of the same, as Miami stayed at home on the red hot Danny Green and tried to use LeBron James to bottle up Tony Parker. The Spurs adjusted, and Tim Duncan had one of the best halves of his career, scoring 25 points in the first half and generally dominating the paint. Unfortunately for the Spurs, Duncan is 37 years young, and he wore down in the second half, even as the Spurs took a 13 point lead and looked to have the title in hand.

However, as has been the case in these playoffs, Miami responded. Well, mostly LeBron responded. While there has been a lot of talk this year about LeBron's legacy, etc. (which is laughable because he is only 28 years old) people must understand that comparing LeBron to anyone else is foolish, because he isn't like Jordan, or Magic or anyone else. For the haters, there was plenty of evidence with which to damn King James, as he fell apart in the waning moments of the game, first getting toasted by Tony Parker and then faltering offensively as the Spurs packed the paint and forced him to shoot jumpers. However, as is the norm, if you look at LeBron's overall performance in game 6, 50 minutes, 32 points, 10 boards, 11 assists, 3 steals and forced Parker into a 6-23 performance. All of that just for a CHANCE at another "legacy game" that can determine whether or not the Heat will remain champs. LeBron got a little bit of help, mainly in the form of Mario Chalmers in the first half, Ray Allen's huge shot in the close of the 4th quarter, and Chris Bosh, following through on his promise not to let Danny Green beat Miami. It was an incredible game to watch, but the real fun will begin when game 7 tips off.

Club.

According to Stiehler his candidacy for mayor was vetted with the Highlands County Club board which he says "is 100% behind him" and says he has an awesome staff that will pick up any slack, if necessary.

Stiehler says the office of mayor will satisfy his need for always being challenged. He also feels he will be a better mayor than a commissioner citing "communication" as one of his best traits. He said he hopes to improve the communication avenue currently in place at Town Hall.

If elected, he plans on being at Town Hall Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays for a few hours each morning.

According to the MC Board of Elections, if a vacancy occurs in an elected office of a municipality it is filled by appointment by majority vote of the Town Commissioners. The person appointed serves the remainder of the term.

If the person appointed to serve as Commissioner would like to run for office, then he or she would do so when the filing period starts for that office.

Stiehler said he's canvassing for candidates to fill his commission seat should he win the mayor's seat and welcome submissions.

The filing period for the upcoming 2013 Municipal Election for the Town of Highlands begins at noon, Friday, July 5 and closes Friday, July 19 at noon.

Only registered voters of the municipality are eligible to vote in the upcoming election. Candidates must also

hr. credit elective) might get you a raise. As he says, "The analytical and critical thinker will always win." His apparent personal definition of "analytical and critical" thinking appears skewed. No, make that contradictory.

In his attempt to take a cheap shot at "liberal" education he completely missed Governor McCrory's point. As a true hard right ideologue the Governor wants the colleges in his state to produce good reliable worker bees for his corporate funders. Critical thinkers, independent minded employees, are usually more trouble than they are worth.

The Republicans promised us jobs and wealth, but give us fewer of everything

Dear Editor,

The House Republicans in Raleigh have passed their version of the budget. It cuts taxes most for the wealthiest households while eliminating the earned income tax credit, which will hurt almost a million middle income North Carolinians. Their tax plan will reduce money available for state services, including police, fire, roads, water quality, public education, health care and programs that help the poor.

Reducing taxes is not the end-all be-all solution to NC's issues. It just shifts the burden from those who can afford it to those who are just trying to get by. The GOP tax cuts will most help households earning over $100,000. How many households in Macon County would be ecstatic to live on less than half of that?

Using Rush Limbaugh and Fox News, Republicans have brought about a cultural shift. Gone are the days of "Be Thy Brothers' Keeper." They've replaced it with "Every man, woman, and child for him/herself." In other words, "I've got mine and who cares about everyone else."

The real crime is that Republicans are trying to convince us that greed is good, and that the highest civic duty is to cut taxes rather than help our neighbors. In their eyes, profits and lower taxes are more important than people. All Christians and others of good heart should be disgusted with their trickery.

Further, Republicans in Raleigh and DC want to use their wealth to control us. Leave us alone. We are just trying to make a living while they make a killing off of us.

From an economic and moral standpoint, why did so many of us vote them in?

Call them and write them now before they finalize the budget. Let them know that greed and powerlust are not the answer. Jesus was quite clear about this.

About 30 people turned out for Saturday's marker unveiling which is near the steps on Main Street across from Reeves Hardware and in front of the old Visitor Center.

Mike Hill, research supervisor with the NC Division of Archives and History, explained the significance of the state's 77-year-old historical marker program which has planted almost 1,600 markers state-wide, 12 of which stand in Macon County.

In fact, Macon County has more historical markers than any other of the state's 100 counties with the first one erected in the 1930s at the Nikwasi Mound in Franklin.

The marker erected for Michaux is in the natural history category and joins markers in Macon County for William Bartram, Silas McDowell and Thomas Harbison.

Hill said there are five other Michaux markers in the state which were erected in 1949 in Bakersville, Morganton, Lincoln, Black Mountain and on Grandfather Mountain. But somehow the earliest trip, into what is now Highlands, was overlooked, something Highlands historian Ran Shaffer reminded the department of.

Most marker subjects originate as requests from the public and anyone can submit a proposal, as did Shaffner. Proposals for new markers are submitted to the members of the Marker Advisory Committee for review, which is made up of 10 historians from across the state, each of whom is an expert in the state's history. Members meet twice a year and what they primarily look for is some indication that the subject is statewide, as opposed to local in significance. "It is not a simple matter to qualify," said Hill.

Also on hand Saturday was André Michaux himself (a.k.a. Charlie Williams, retired librarian from the Charlotte Mecklenburg Library System who is also chairman of the North American Williams said there are accounts of Michaux's fear of the wilderness but he overcame that fear to become a true wilderness explorer-botanist. He traveled greater distances than any other botanist of his era. In 11 years he went from Florida, north to Quebec and west to Mississippi.

Rex Baker, a member of the NC House of Representatives in 2003, who was also at the unveiling Saturday, sponsored the Carolina Lily, one of the plants Michaux discovered on one of his subsequent forays into the NC wilderness, as the state wildflower and named it for Michaux. It was rescued at a construction project and transplanted at Hanging Rock State Park. Rex's wife, Helen, donated a photograph of the flower that was originally on display in the Governor's Mansion to the Highlands Historical Society Village.

Map of Michaux's trek from Seneca to Highlands in 1787. Prepared by the late Bob Zahner.

Chapter of the André Michaux International Society.)

Williams explained that in June 1787 Michaux left the relative civilization of the Indian village of Seneca (modern-day Clemson, SC) with a young interpreter and two Cherokee guides who led them through the wilderness and up the mountains to Highlands.

There were no roads; he walked leading a horse on Indian trails and bear paths for five days to get from the Seneca village to Highlands. It rained everyday. His party ran short of food because his guides couldn't hunt because their powder was wet. Nevertheless, they continued their trek up the mountain.

Why did Michaux make this difficult journey? It wasn't the lust for gold or land or adventure. He endured these hardships to discover plants that were then unknown to science. He made this journey to add to the catalog of human knowledge, said Williams.

Board meeting, 7 p.m. at the Community Building.

If the board agrees to allow OEI's signs, then the Planning Board will be asked to amend the ordinance and present it at the July Town Board meeting.

In other planning news, both the Zoning Board of Adjustment and the Planning Board spent most of their June meetings held Wednesday, June 12 and Monday, June 17, respectively, doing housekeeping.

These were the first meetings presided over by Ward and as such, matters relating to procedure were reviewed.

Like the Planning Board the month before, the Zoning Board adopted Rules of Procedure relating to terms of office, duties of officers, attendance, conflict of interest, recusal from voting, the step-by-step meeting outline, etc.

Ward stressed several points.

All actions take a 4/5th vote, but if only four members are present then the vote must be unanimous. If an applicant learns there are only four of the five Zoning Board members present, he or she can ask to be put on the next month's agenda.

Desired recusal from a case must be declared prior to discussion of new business and only under the following terms: a board member has a financial interest in the decision, has a close family or business tie to the applicant (including if the applicant is a board member's employer) or if the board member has a pre-determined fixed opinion that is not susceptible to change.

Terms of recusal are now more precise than in the past when it was believed that only a direct financial interest – as in the board member is likely to make money based on the outcome of the vote – held sway.

Like the Planning Board, faithful attendance is required of members and alternates. Failure to attend three consecutive meetings or four nonconsecutive meetings within a 12-month period, regardless of the reason, shall be cause for removal from the board.

Ward also went over the strict guidelines for the issuance of a Special Use Permit (SUP) or a variance.

To issue a SUP, four findings of fact must be met with an affirmative answer or else a SUP can't be granted.

The board learned that both SUPs and variances go with the property and there is no expiration date unless the use stops for 12 months and then both are void and must be applied for again.

Likewise, to issue a variance, three general findings of fact, as well as five additional findings must be met with an affirmative answer every step of the way.

Franc D'Ambrosio and Glory Crampton star in Tribute to Webber at PAC.

This Weekend at Highlands PAC - Angel of Music: A Salute to Andrew Lloyd Webber

Franc D'Ambrosio is best known as the "Phantom" in Andrew Lloyd Webber's Tony Award winning Musical, "The Phantom of The Opera." Affectionately known as "The Iron Man of The Mask," Franc was awarded the distinction as the "World's Longest Running Phantom."

With the success of D'Ambrosio's national and international tours, he has joined the ranks of the famed Michael Crawford and Sarah Brightman as only a handful of Phantom alumni to successfully crossover to solo careers. Mr. D'Ambrosio is also a welcomed and frequent guest artist with many major symphonies in America and Europe (Pop Series).

In July of 2011 D'Ambrosio was pleased to accept the invitation to co-star in the production "Love Changes Everything" - a celebration of the music of Andrew Lloyd Webber. This production boasted an all star cast, which also featured Tony Award nominee Liz Callaway, Kevin Kern and Laurie Gayle Stephenson. They played to packed houses and received rave reviews. "Most impressive is D'Ambrosio who played the title role in "The Phantom of the Opera" for six years and delivers an exquisite version of "The Music of the Night." Alice T. Carter/Pittsburgh Tribune.

GLORY CRAMPTON is a

Broadway leading lady, musical theatre veteran. She is best known for her critically acclaimed roles in productions of The Fantasticks, Camelot, My Fair Lady, Carousel, Jane Eyre, Nine and Phantom. She is also an accomplished soprano solo artist who has sung with acclaimed tenor Jose Carreras. Glory's first solo CD, "Unusual Way" was released in 2011. The CD features Glory singing such Broadway standards such as I Could Have Danced All Night (My Fair Lady), All I Ask of You (Phantom of the Opera) and Diamonds are a Girl's Best Friend (Gentlemen Prefer Blondes). She was thrilled to have the accompaniment of the London National Symphony and to be able to record at the famous ABBEY ROAD STUDIOS in England.

"It is dangerous listening to this CD, because it will take your breath away, Gorgeous!" WBAI Radio personality David Kenney.

Free picnic concerts and more this season from HCCMF

You're invited to a picnic concert by The Smoky Mountain Brass Quintet at 5 P.M. on Wednesday, June 26, on the grounds of the historic Zachary-Talbot House in Cashiers.

Be sure to bring a picnic and a blanket and prepare to luxuriate under late afternoon skies with al fresco dining and a healthy dose of irresistible music. The concert is free, but donations are greatly appreciated.

The picnic concert marks the beginning of the Highlands-Cashiers Chamber Music Festival's ambitious 2013 season, stretching from June 28 through August 11.

"Because of the July 4th weekend, our opening concerts will be a little earlier than usual -- we open on June 28th-29th with William Preucil and friends for a weekend of brilliant string playing," says Artistic Director Dr. William Ransom. "Highlights will include the festival debut of the dashing young Concertmaster of the Atlanta Symphony, David Coucheron, and his talented sister pianist Julie. Other newcomers include English flutist Anthony Reiss in a program entitled 'The Magic Flute' and clarinetist Roeland Hendriks from Belgium. It wouldn't be summer without The Eroica Trio, and they will be joined by special guests in 'Eroica Plus!'

"The Vega Quartet will be back, and we will have some fun with another 'Jazz Meets Classics' concert featuring, this time, the saxophone, with Dwight Andrews. The Festival Chamber Orchestra will once again close the season at our final Gala with Mozart's extraordinary 'Sinfonia Concertante.'"

Concerts will be held at 6 p.m. Fridays at the Martin-Lipscomb Performing Arts Center in Highlands and repeated at 5 p.m. Saturdays at the Albert Carlton-Cashiers Community Library in Cashiers. Sunday concerts will be staged at 5 p.m. at the Performing Arts Center in Highlands and repeated at 5 p.m. Mondays at the Cashiers Community Library.

With all that talent, the Highlands Cashiers Chamber Music Festival can't help but spill out into the twin communities.

If you miss the Smoky Mountain Brass Quintet's picnic concert, or you'd enjoy an encore performance, they'll be offering a free concert on Saturday, July 6th from 3-5 P.M. at Town Square on Main Street in Highlands.

The Vega Quartet will offer the free Bach at Buck's at Buck's Coffee Cafe on Main Street in Highlands at 8 P.M. Wednesday, July 17. They'll also perform at 8 P.M. Wednesday, July 24, at Buck's at the Crossroads in Cashiers. Bach at Buck's is as natural a combination as, well, rich coffee and warm, mellow notes.

In addition to its nationally-recognized program of concerts, the Highlands-Cashiers Chamber Music Festival is laced with a series of Feasts of the Festival. They're a chance to meet fascinating people and enjoy marvelous food and drink in some of the most breathtaking homes in Western North Carolina. Feasts continue through September and will feature an irresistible series of locations and menus.

For more information about the festival and its full lineup of performances and events, visit www.hcmusicfestival.org or call (828) 526-9060.

Free July 4 patriotic concert at First Presbyterian

sibility and small government before taking their offices.

"I vote my conscience," said Higdon to on-looking Burningtown volunteer firefighters, who had requested a fire tax increase for their district to maintain adequate fire coverage and hire an additional employee. "I promised my [constituents] that I would not support expansion of government... A full time employee doesn't help anybody at three in the morning."

However, in the end, the board voted in favor of the $47,145,470 budget ordinance. Commissioners Higdon and Haven cast the only dissenting votes.

Education

Macon County Public Schools can retain its first-year teachers after all, as commissioners voted to appropriate $220,000—about half of the $440,000 shortfall—to maintain its current level of operations.

The appropriation was a breath of fresh air for Board of Education members and dozens of young area educators, who faced a $1.4 million budget shortfall for FY 2013-'14.

"I support the proposed budget... The immediate benefit of this is we get to put teachers back into the classrooms and keep our class sizes to a minimum, as well," said incoming MC Schools Superintendent and FHS Principal Chris Baldwin. BOE Chairman Jim Breedlove echoed Baldwin's comments and gave his thanks to the board for their decision.

According to Commission Chairman Kevin Corbin, by decreasing Capital Outlay funding, the commission could allot roughly half of the funds needed by the Board of Education. Interim Superintendent Dr. Jim Duncan said now all first-year teachers facing cuts could keep their positions within the school system.

Though the 2% teacher supplement the county pays each year was on the cutting block, Monday night commissioners agreed to allot the $430,000 for the supplement. However, still $220,000 short of its needed $440,000, MC Schools Finance Director Angie Cook said the school board will decide what will happen to the supplement money. Two weeks ago, BOE Chairman Jim Breedlove said if necessary the BOE would be the "bad guys" if the funds allotted for the supplement had to be reallocated FY 2013-'14.

The commission gave the BOE permission to "use the funds as it sees fit."

Sheriff

Following last week's plea for a School Resource Officer by Nantahala School's principal and Nantahala's BOE representative, commissioners voted to grant the Macon County Sheriff's Office one SRO for Nantahala, instead of the two originally requested. The appropriation will pay for personnel only, not equipment or a vehicle.

"I take the responsibility of serving as sheriff extremely seriously," said Holland at the beginning of the meeting. "I am responsible for protecting this community; those that support me, those that work against me, those that believe in our mission and those that do not. The day that I was elected I took an oath to protect and serve. That does not mean only those who share my beliefs, but to serve all the residents of Macon County. When it comes to those we serve, your responsibility is virtually the same as mine. I stand before you tonight to let you know that the budget you are voting on tonight is not perfect. But all of us have spent several months working together with our county manager to make this budget what it is." Holland said that he did not want to see taxes raised and encouraged the board to support Horton's budget.

Fire

Commissioners granted the proposed fire tax increases for two of the 11 fire districts that serve Macon County.

Instead of a fire tax increase, the county has appropriated Burningtown Fire Department $25,472 to cover the majority of a full-time employee's salary.

Both Cowee and Otto fire departments got their requested fire tax increase of .04 and .07, respectively. Clark's Chapel Fire Department withdrew its fire tax increase request.

When I moved to Highlands almost 20 years ago, my goals and dreams were so different from those I have today.

After having numerous homes, a beautiful 4,700 square foot arts and crafts home with a wonderful mountain view, the prettiest outdoor porch I've ever seen – with a double-sided stone fireplace and located in Highlands Cove at Old Edwards Club – became our home for 6 years.

My thinking upon selecting it was that our children and grandchildren would visit quite often.

I soon realized that kids and their kids these days have much busier lives than those in my generation! Soccer, dance, football, tennis, ballet, don't leave much travel time!

After much deliberation, we decided that to be able to live in downtown Highlands in a smaller 3 bedroom, 3 bath condominium suited our present needs.

To walk or drive around the corner to great restaurants and shops, to enjoy breakfast or lunch at Mountain Fresh Grocery, to frequent events at the Performing Arts Center or Highlands Playhouse, or simply take a walk with the grand dog replaced a grand home with a grand but simpler way of life.

The condo concept was a struggle for the town of Highlands but now they have accepted the needs of baby boomers.

No maintenance, just lock and go is the new way of living! Village Walk, Old Highlands Park, Satulah Village and Phase 1 of Town Place all sold out!

We are delighted to bring you Phase 2 of Town Place that will offer 9 town home units complete with a garage and optional terrace levels and elevators.

Nine side-by-side units done in classic and elegant mountain style are pre-selling and will become the sought after address!

Last week clinic representatives said $50,000 was needed to sustain the clinic and continue to provide services while it embarks on a major fundraising campaign to see the clinic into the future.

Falling Waters is governed by the NC Planned Community Act, and excellent framework for basic structure governing practices and declarations. Boys and Men In Lunenburg

Highlanders join choir for Nova Scotia tour

Several Highlanders were among the 55 members of the World Famous Atlanta Boy Choir when they sang last week in Nova Scotia.

This Grammy Award winning musical organization was founded 56 years ago by longtime Highland resident, Fletcher Wolfe.

Maestro Wolfe had as his accompanist for the tour organist and choir master at the Episcopal Church of the Incarnation, Robert Henry.

Dr. Henry, an internationally acclaimed concert pianist began his career with the choir when he was a youngster. Also joining this group was the renowned Highland Soprano soloist Molly McKim.

The choir having sung last month here in Highlands at Incarnation once again brought rave reviews and overflowing audiences to their concerts.

Of the more than 8,000 boys who have been members of this choir, several now reside in the Highlands area and are on hand each time the choir performs here.

The thirty young boys and the twenty Alumni men who participated in this tour were treated royally by the Canadians who prepared many luscious meals for them as well as showing them things most tourists don't get to see.

They took the boys out into the ocean 15 miles to see the whales, otters and other sea life and the fisherman invited them aboard their ships to witness firsthand how they catch fish and land lobster.

The choir was given many educational experiences including a rare look at items that came off the Titanic along with several films and lectures about that event.

All in all this was a marvelous cultural experience for the boys and men as well as for all those who came to hear them.

Several listeners said, "Surely this is the best choir in America and quite possibly in the world." Such comments were also heard from many Highlanders who attended their recent concert here.

For more details concerning the choir please visit their website at www.atlantaboychoir.org

... PLANNING continued from page 11

“Variances should be very hard to grant,” said Ward.

The first finding is perhaps the most daunting: “There are practical difficulties or unnecessary hardships in the way of carrying out the strict letter of the ordinance. To determine that first finding, another five sub-findings must be met. The first sub-heading is the hardest to meet: If the applicant complies, he can’t secure a reasonable return from nor make reasonable use of his property ...”

Besides OEI’s off premise sign, which was discussed briefly at the end of the meeting, the Planning Board agreed with a 3-1 vote to amend its attendance requirements to match the Zoning Board’s by changing the word “may” to “shall.”

Ward said the word “shall” is strict and the word “may” isn’t and that’s what the commissioners want in the verbiage: Failure to attend three consecutive meetings or four nonconsecutive meetings within a 12-month period, regardless of the reason, shall be cause for removal from the board.

Member Mandi Neumann voted against changing the verbiage. Members Thomas Craig, Tony Potts and Glenda Bell voted to change may to shall.

The board also voted unanimously to amend sections of the Unified Development Code to exempt governmental and community service signs OK’d by the town from the off-premise sign ordinance; and to amend section 15.3.1. which applies to issuing citations for illegal off-premise or other signage.

To streamline the citation process, a notice of violation now accompanies a citation which is $100 each time.

There was some talk about increasing the citation since paying the $100/day fine for an illegal sign could be equated to advertising and well worth the cost of doing business if the illegal sign brings people in the door.

Ward said that point will be brought up to the Town Board and it’s possible a different fee will be assigned habitual offenders.

Food Pantry Needs Help

The food pantry is now serving almost 70
families per week.

We need people to unload food from delivery vehicles, put food on the shelves, divide and bag bulk items for distribution, break down and recycle boxes, take away
trash, distribute food, schedule volunteers,
make phone calls, and many other jobs.

The pantry fills an important need in this community for your friends and neighbors who need help, sometimes temporarily, sometimes long term.

If you can volunteer for this important ministry, please call the Methodist Church office, 526-3376 or Mary Heffington 526-3671.
