NC Secretary of Commerce visits Macon County

Says Gov. McCrory may relook at Medicaid reimbursement

By Brittany Raby

North Carolina's Secretary of Commerce Sharon Decker made a stop in Macon County last week to discuss her vision for the economic future of rural North Carolina.

Decker, who was appointed as Commerce Secretary in 2013 by Governor Pat McCrory, hails from Rutherford County and opened her talk at the Macon Bank Corporate headquarters in Franklin with how she understands the economic struggles of rural western North Carolina.

Decker graduated summa cum laude from the University of North Carolina at Greensboro before starting a career of nearly two decades at Duke Energy where

'Hunger Games' cat(s) are new Highlands celebrities

The fickle film industry can make you or break you.

Luckily, however, the fate of the cat that played "Buttercup" in the first movie in the Hunger Games series became fortune for three Highlands' cats that now double for Buttercup in the series.

When the author and producer decided the first cat was not right for the part and wanted to replace it, the search was on and the road led to Highlands.

700,000 acres in Pisgah/ Nantahala forests pegged for harvesting

By Brittany Raby

As the largest of four National Forests in North Carolina, the Nantahala National Forest winds through six western North Carolina counties and totals 531,270 acres. As such, the Nantahala National Forest makes up a significant portion of Macon County and serves as home to the county's wildlife and natural forest growth.

Last week, the United States Forest Service published a draft plan that would open up 700,000 acres of the Pisgah and Nantahala National Forests for suitable logging under a new 15-plus year management plan.

As a matter of perspective, the 700,000 that is proposed to be cut, is an area larger than the Great Smoky Mountain National

Town projects subject of tonight's Town Board meeting

The agenda for tonight's Highlands Town Board meeting will feature three major items. It should not be a lengthy meeting.

We have a bid and possible contractor for the pool covering. The project is slightly behind schedule because no bids were submitted this fall. If the bid is approved by the board, the contractor could begin work at any time. The original target date was to have the covering complete by Memorial Day Weekend. Given the delay, the pool may not reopen until later in the summer.

The bid to rebuild the ball field complex will also be reviewed tonight. Here again, timing is critical. If we proceed with this construction project, the new facility could be ready for the upcoming softball season. Related to this project, the board will discuss a preliminary proposal and possible donation by Art and Angela Williams of an ice skating rink. It could be in operation at the ball field beginning at the 2015 Thanksgiving weekend and through the 2016 winter season.

My mayor's report tonight will include a discussion of an application by a California company, Advanced Hydro, to renew the town's expired Federal Energy Regulatory Commission license to operate a hydroelectric plant about 2,000 feet below the dam at Lake Sequoyah. It is also called a FERC license. This company proposes to use the building Highlands constructed on Forest Service land for power generation from 1916 to 1968. They propose constructing a 36 inch pipe/penstock system below the dam. Water over the dam would be channeled to a generator located in our old power building. They estimate that 775 kilowatts could be generated at peak periods. That is about $200,000 worth of power per year. The green energy would be sold back to Duke.

As it now stands, this revenue would go to the investing company, not the town of Highlands. Highlands allowed this FERC license to expire in 1997, so Advance Hydro wants to take over our building and resume operations. The town allowed this FERC license to expire in 1997.

Interestingly, the public announcement for the application appeared in the Franklin Press, not in any Highlands newspapers. As an interested party, Highlands has the option to respond to this initial application to FERC. Approval of this application is a long shot. Nevertheless, I will request board permission to submit a letter of concern and interest. Bob Frye, the town manager, will give his assessment and advice about this process.

Highlands Mayor

On another note, some folks have questioned why the town eliminated the postcard utility bills for a more costly envelope billing system. Commissioners questioned the costs before approving the new statement format. After

Dear Editor,

Last Thursday, November 6, was a day that should be applauded for the community spirit that was shown when the Highlands Falls Country Club Maintenance team donated a full day of labor, materials and machines to begin the clean up process of Phase II of the Kelsey Hutchinson Founders Park.

The team was led by Fred Gehrisch whose commitment to community service was well demonstrated as he and members of his crew turned fallen, dead, and scrub trees into about three cords of firewood which was delivered to the Emergency Council for use by families in need.

The event was organized by Founders Park Coalition member Rich Reid. Additional thanks go to members of both the Highlands and Mountaintop Rotary Clubs and the Highlands Cashiers Land Trust who helped with wood splitting, trash clean up, and refreshments.

I've lived in large cities from New York to San Francisco and many cities in between, but the level of community commitment in Highlands is unmatched. Thank you Highlands for your support of the park.

she helped establish the creation of Duke Energy's 24-hour customer service center. Although she had retired from Duke Energy, when called on by McCrory to lead the state as the Secretary of Commerce, Decker noted that she felt it was her responsibility to help rebuild North Carolina's economy.

To a room full of local government officials and business leaders, Decker outlined her 5-point plan to get towns and cities across North Carolina back on a sound economic footing.

1) Health

"The first point of focus for any area is to have a solid health industry," said Decker. "When companies are looking to relocate or expand, they first look at the area's health options and benefits for potential employees."

Decker praised Macon County for taking advantage of the outdoors and working with companies such as Duke Energy to create physical activity opportunities through endeavors such as the Little Tennessee Greenway.

"Having healthy employees is also something that all companies should strive for in order to be more successful," said Decker. "Healthier employees mean lower insurance costs, and lower insurance costs mean more money in the pockets of your employees as well as less expense needed by the company."

Decker said as a state, one of the focuses in the coming year is to revisit the plan to expand Medicaid in North Carolina. Although originally the federal dollars attached to the Medicaid Expansion plan in the state were rejected, Decker said it is crucial to revisit that opportunity and see if and how it can help the residents of the state.

According to Decker, Governor Pat McCrory has been quoted as saying he supports looking again at possible expanding Medicaid in the state which will not only bring additional jobs to North Carolina, but will also provide health coverage for a large group of citizens.

2) Education

Decker explained that the second point of focus for rebuilding the state's economy and attracting new jobs is a strong public education foundation. Praising the location of Western Carolina University and Southwestern Community College, Decker noted that Macon County is in a perfect position to take advantage of secondary education and continued education training for various industries.

She also said Macon Early College, which allows high school students to take college classes toward earning an Associate degree, is a huge benefit for public education. With a variety of public education choices, companies can be assured that Macon County has made a commitment to educating the youth of the region, as well as providing multiple opportunities for continuing education for adults.

some initial startup costs, the new system will be no more expensive than the postcard system. It will also provide more options such as electronic, paperless billing for customers who elect to do so. The electronic bill will be automatically sent via the internet as soon as the statement is ready, therefore eliminating delays in the mailing of statements to second home residents residing in distant towns.

Hope to see you at tonight's 7:00 pm meeting at the Highlands Conference Center next to the ball field.

Park.

The proposed plan has garnered both opposition from conservationists and support from game hunters. Conservation groups are concerned that the proposed logging will negate the work to restore and preserve recreation possibilities in the forests.

Representatives with the Southern Environmental Law Center have been quoted opposing the measure due to the lack of focus the management plan places on areas of the national forest that have been previously destroyed due to past logging efforts.

In addition to failing to focus on the restoration of damaged spots in the forest, the law center cautions that the proposed management plan would repeat past mistakes and put the healthiest areas of both the Pisgah and Nantahala National Forests literally on the chopping block.

While the 700,000 acres is proposed in the management plan, the rate in which that would be logged is unclear. The plan calls for an increase in logging in coming years compared to the past, but does not clearly define at what rate or how much of an increase.

Furthermore, no area of the forests are off limits, and there is language in the plan to develop roads and access to untouched backcountry for the intention of timber production.

Supporters of the plan say that logging the forests will benefit game hunters and will open up greater possibilities for hunting and recreation related to wildlife. While the areas are open for potential logging, the designation for the 700,000 is for overall forest management, with claims that it will help balance the needs of wildlife habitat, timber production, recreational users, and water resources.

Timber production for wildlife is conducted because wildlife flourishes in new growth areas, therefore by logging or cutting a section of a forest, the new growth habitat is ideal for the forests' wildlife.

Currently, logging is permitted within 527,705 acres of the forests. That has been the case since 1987 when the exiting management plan was established. The newly identified 164,000 acres, as conservationists have repeatedly noted, are located within areas of the forests which have been long fought to be protected.

In Macon County, one of those sacred areas is Tellico Bald. An untouched primitive forest patch, the Tellico Gap area intertwines with the Appalachian Trail and provides hiking and other outdoor recreation. Tellico Bald is a peak of 5,200 feet and is one of many destination for visitors to the area.

Earlier this year, Macon County commissioners joined forces with other western North Carolina counties asking Congress not to designate additional forests as wilderness areas, thus supporting the increased logging.

Western North Carolina counties sent a resolution to lawmakers regarding the management of local forest lands.

At a meeting of the Macon County Board of Commissioners earlier this year, representing the conservation group the Ruffed Grouse Society, local resident Tim Gray spoke to the board urging members to pass a resolution against the designation of more wilderness areas in the Nantahala National Forest. Gray informed the board that other counties such as Cherokee County had passed similar resolutions and supported the measure.

The resolution, which was unanimously approved by commissioners, outlines Macon County's stance against designating additional areas of the forest as wilderness areas. By designating additional areas of the National Forest as wilderness areas, the use of those areas would be restricted and will hinder the timber and old growth management.

The U.S. Forest Service's currently proposed plan falls in line with the commissioners' stance earlier this year to be able to utilize the local resources in Macon County.

the second film in the series,” said Cain Haley of Highlands. “A friend of mine, whose cat was in the Garfield movie, recommended my Maine Coon cats and when visiting cat shows, scouts said they kept hearing about my cats.”

Cain breeds cats – she has 10 – and travels all over the US participating in cat shows and actually has several cats that are in commercials.

When the folks from the Hunger Games first called her three years ago, she said no to the offer. However, after the public relations person from the Cat Fanciers Association said there is always an animal control officer on site to ensure the animals’ safety, she changed her mind.

“I let them come and see Rion, and they said he was the one. We went to Atlanta to meet with the director and the writer, and they hired him.”

Next they needed a stunt double for Buttercup so again, they looked all over the US, but couldn’t find a cat who could literally “do the trick.”

“I told them I didn’t know if he (Josh) would do it in front of 200 extras, but I also had another Maine Coon cat who might be up for the part. They hired him, and you will see, he did a great job!” she said.

All three – Rion, Josh and Indy – play Buttercup, but so far Indy hasn’t been used.

“I just had her at the set in case we needed her,” said Cain. “Rion stays in one spot the best and Josh plays and runs the best. He was recommended for the stunt double part because he loves to show off for the crowds at shows,” she said.

Both Josh and Rion have shown, and Rion is a RW SGCA GP. In cat show language that is good, said Cain. Once Rion won all his awards he retired, but he came out of retirement to do movies and commercials.

According to Cain, commercials pay better than movies “but everyone wants to do movies.”

She said the pay is nothing you can retire on and cats certainly don’t make what the stars make, “but, in a film like Hunger Games, you stay in a great hotel, have a driver, and the meals are great – there are always two carving stations at lunch!” she said laughing.

Highlands’ cats, Rion and Josh, stars of The Hunger Games, will be on hand for the Highlands Playhouse opening of the The Hunger Games “Mockingjay I” on Thursday, Nov. 20 at 7pm before the start of the movie at 8pm.

That night, The Best of Me will show at 2 and 5 p.m., only.

Rion and Josh who both have roles in the Hunger Game movies will be available for photographs and donations for the Cashiers-Highlands Humane Society will be accepted. Cain Haley will be on hand to answer questions.

In addition, the night of Nov. 20, Wild Thyme, Pescados and some other restaurants will be donating money to the local shelter if patrons mention the name “Buttercup” to the waiter.

“We encourage everyone to have a great night out on November 20th before the premier of the movie and remember to say “Buttercup,” said Cain.

The Hunger Games Mockingjay Part 1 will show Fri., Nov. 21 through Thurs., Dec. 11 everyday except Tuesdays and Wednesdays 2, 5, and 8 p.m.

• The Hunger Games is a series of four science-fiction dystopian action adventure films from Lionsgate based on The Hunger Games novels by the American author Suzanne Collins. The series is produced by Nina Jacobson and stars Jennifer Lawrence, Josh Hutcherson and Liam Hemsworth as the three leading characters, Katniss Everdeen, Peeta Mellark and Gale Hawthorne.

The first film, The Hunger Games, was released on March 23, 2012 and set records for opening day ($67.3 million) and biggest opening weekend for a non-sequel film. At the time of its release, the film’s opening weekend gross ($152.5 million) was the third-largest of any film in North America. The film was both a critical and box office success.

The second film, The Hunger Games: Catching Fire, was released on November 22, 2013 and set the record for biggest opening weekend ever in the month of November and the sixth-largest opening of any film in North America at the time, with a total of $158.1 million. The film was both a critical and financial success.

The third film, The Hunger Games: Mockingjay – Part 1, begins this week. It received positive reviews from early critics.

The fourth and final film, The Hunger Games: Mockingjay – Part 2, will be released on November 20, 2015.

season – with extended hours on Black Friday and the day of the Christmas Parade – and will feature homemade and handmade items.

Owner of the building, Ben Murray, hopes filling the space will make it more attractive as well as increase business at the café.

“This will be a great inside space for the local artisans to show and sell their products,” said organizer Darlene Marker. “We believe it will be a win/win for all!”

According to Zoning Director Josh Ward, retail is permitted in Café 460's B-1 zone and the Holiday Artisans Market will simply replace the retail/pharmacy that was previously there.

Products expected to be available for purchase are soy candles, teas, spices, herbal pillows & other Marker Mountain products, hand milled wheat and holiday breads, handmade furniture, knitted scarves and hats, hand-turned wooden bowls, salt and pepper grinders, homemade jams and jellies, handmade jewelry, wine bottle art, Christmas ornaments, hand-painted silk scarves, pottery, aprons and kitchen items, ironwork, photography and other handmade gifts.

All participating artisans are from Highlands, Cashiers and Franklin and all products are handmade by the artisans.

According to Marker, the selection of vendors will vary from week to week, but all will be in attendance for December 6, the day of the Christmas Parade.

On the day of the Christmas Parade, the hours will be extended from 9a to 5p.

The group expects to have their sign approved and in hand by Saturday.

Republicans alternative better be good!

Elmer was sitting on his front porch sipping some moonshine smoking one of those $600 Bill Clinton cigars when Bob “just happened to walk by.” Of course we all know it was no coincidence. Bob had the uncanny ability to appear out of nowhere at the right time.

Elmer, as most of you know, is one of the world’s greatest philosophers and thinkers.

Not only that, he was an inventor and his invention of a diaper for dogs with weak bladders earned him millions.

“OK, sonny, quit playing games. Come on up and set in a rocking chair and we’ll chat for a while.”

Pretending to not having noticed Elmer, Bob tried to act surprised at seeing him but accepted his invite. He was also looking forward to a shot of moonshine and was soon ensconced in a rocking chair on the porch.

“What’s on your mind today, sonny?”

Well, gee, I was really thinking about how the Republicans had taken both houses. What did get my attention is that they are now talking big about repealing Obamacare. What dya think?

“You want my honest opinion?”

Yeah, I do, right between the eyes.

“It would be downright stupid unless the Republicans have something better to replace it.”

Do they?

“So far, I haven’t heard any ideas coming from them. But, I will say that if they take a second look at the proposal John Mackey, CEO of Whole Foods, made a few years ago they might come up with a winner. I don’t think we will ever manage to provide medical insurance for the entire population because people, especially young people, don’t think they need medical insurance. There are also groups such as drug dealers and other nefarious characters who will never buy it. Don’t know how reliable the figures are but I’ve heard that 15 million to 30 million folks just won’t buy it, no matter what.”

Many of them can get away with it because they know that federal law requires emergency rooms to treat them, insurance or not. But, tell me about John Mackey’s plan.

“Sonny, you can look it up on Google. John Mackey has a web site called ‘Conscious Capitalism’ that includes a complete description of his plan. In a nutshell, it gets the trial lawyers out of the picture who are driving our medical costs sky-high. It allows companies to provide coverage for their employees and deduct the cost from their taxes. It also allows individuals to open savings accounts they can put money into them to cover higher deductibles and cut their premiums. They can also deduct the premiums from their taxes. It also allows insurance companies to sell insurance across state lines which would increase competition amongst them.

You can look it up, sonny but that’s the essential parts of the plan.”

Yeah, but what about Medicare and Medicaid?

“That would continue as usual. You and I paid into Medicare for around 50 years so that must continue. We put our money in and expect a return on our investment. Not our fault the government spent our money on other stuff.”

Sounds like a Libertarian view of medical insurance.

“It is. But don’t forget when John Mackey made his proposal, all the wackos came out of hiding and slammed it. The Vegans didn’t like it, the Leftists didn’t like it, even the animal rights groups were against it. Sonny, it was too logical for them and you know how neurotic twits are, logic and reason doesn’t come easy to them.”

Yeah, I remember some of them even picketed Whole Foods stores demanding his resignation.

“Well, as I said, those Republicans had better be ready to replace Obamacare with something better or they’re going to look pretty foolish. Hopefully, something that won’t turn into the bureaucratic nightmare facing us now.

In the end, what’s the point of it all if we still end up with millions of folks still not insured and at that rate, we’ll have gone through all this for nothing. And worse, medical costs are still rising. We were told it would cost less but find it is more expensive.”

The Kaiser came up with a program in 1898 that has done well for Germans but keep in mind they had a very small population compared to what we have in the U.S. right now. And, they didn’t have millions of illegal aliens to deal with either.

“Sonny, I’ve got a hot date tonight and I need to get dressed so if you’ll excuse me, finish your moonshine and allow me to depart.”

Thanks again, Elmer.

• Purely by accident, Bob has found that he actually has two readers, not counting his wife.

Executive Director of Highlands Area Chamber of Commerce attended the Secretary of Commerce's presentation last Friday.

3) Economic Development

North Carolina has an untapped market of possible job growth and creation according to Decker. Half of the job growth which has been experienced in North Carolina has been from the expansion of existing businesses. Decker touted this as an excellent example of the restoration of a broken economy.

"When existing businesses are expanding and creating more jobs, it is a great indicator that here in North Carolina we take care of the jobs that we have, which is extremely important," she said. "When so much of our job growth has been within existing businesses, it leaves a huge market for new jobs and new industries to come into the state."

4) Infrastructure

When discussing growth in any area, one of the main focuses is the improvement and maintenance of infrastructure. When it comes to the state's economy, infrastructure remains a focus for Decker.

"We need to invest in our ports," said Decker. "We export less than 2 percent of the goods we produce here in the state. We need to increase that."

She said the core of any economy, especially here in rural North Carolina, is small business growth.

"Sixty percent of the businesses in the state employ 50 people or less. We need to develop measures to help our state's small businesses. We need tax reform that is going to protect our businesses and make it possible to grow and to reach the international markets."

5) Arts, Tourism and Culture

In North Carolina, the tourism industry is a $20 billion a year industry. With the natural resources and attractions in western North Carolina, Decker explained that this region of the state stands to benefit significantly from the arts, tourism and culture industry.

"During the last two years, tourism is the only industry that has grown in all 100 counties in the state," said Decker. "This category focuses on insuring the quality of life for citizens, and quality of life is more valuable than money to a lot of people. At the end of the day, companies don't come or stay in an area if they don't like the area. The rest of the world does not live like we do here in North Carolina. Once they get a little taste, they are sold."

Decker finished her address to local business owners by encouraging everyone to be committed to the community. Giving the example that her own children had influential people in their lives who made a significant impact, Decker encouraged those in attendance to be impactful on the lives of children who are not theirs.

"As leaders in this community, you have the opportunity to make a difference," said Decker. "Sometimes, even when we have the best parents and authority figures possible in our lives, it takes someone different to make a difference. You can be that person for a child in this community. Whether it is someone at your church, someone at a place you volunteer, or just a complete stranger, love a child that isn't yours. Be there for them. Because you may be the only person that is. Reaching the children in this community helps them as they grow into adults who will in turn become productive, contributing members of society. So I beg you, love a child that isn't yours. Be the difference for that child."

After addressing local government and business leaders, Decker joined Macon County Commissioner Chairman Kevin Corbin and Economic Development Director for Macon County Tommy Jenkins on a tour of home-grown businesses in the county. From Drake Software, to Duotech, to Tektone, Decker was able to meet local workers and talk with businesses about what makes working and living in Macon County so great.

Middle School Basketball

The teams traveled to Blue Ridge on Monday, Nov. 17 to face the Bobcats.

The Lady Highlanders came out playing aggressively on defense but Coach Michelle Munger feels they need to work more toward being aggressive on offense.

Although the girls lost 34 to 24, Coach said they played well for their first game. Their next game is today, Thursday, Nov. 20 at Victory. Results will be in the Nov. 26 edition.

The boys came out very strong for their first game in the regular season. They also played aggressively, rebounding well inside and shooting well outside. They came out with an impressive win against Blue Ridge 42 to 26.

Varsity Basketball

On Friday, Nov. 14, the boys and girls teams travelled to Towns County for a scrimmage game.

The girls took a 56 to 43 loss and the boys lost, too, 73-33.

Their next game will also be a scrimmage game (girls only). They will travel to Smoky Mountain.

Their first regular season game will be Tuesday, Dec. 2 at home against Blue Ridge.

Kick off your Holiday Season with Jason D Williams

Jason D Williams, Back by Popular Demand, at the Highlands PAC on Friday, November 28, 8pm. Enthusiastic...Reckless...Stormy...Rock & Roll in its natural state.

The Kansas City Star Pronounced Jason D. Williams as "the past and future of rock & roll." The Beacon Journal dubbed him as "The worlds greatest piano player." Most importantly this reminds you of why you got into rock & roll in the first place, to get a little wild. After seeing a live show there will be no doubt why fans and critics alike agree with that summation of the dynamic piano player from Memphis. Jason D. has the same musical innovation and on the edge attitude as Jerry Lee and Elvis. Jason's style is difficult to describe. From Classical to Rockabilly to Country to Jazz and on to Rock & Roll, Jason D. adapts to each different concert setting he performs.

Williams has learned a lot from the masters who earned their musical stripes at Sun (Recording) – including the artist he normally gets compared to, Jerry Lee Lewis. (In the 1989 film Great Balls of Fire, Williams' hands appeared in the piano-playing scenes.) If you've ever seen Williams on stage, he has much the same intense performance style as Lewis and many other artists of the day, which is a contrast to his soft-spoken nature. "That's a switch that a lot of entertainers have. They're normal one minute, and then the next they are setting themselves on fire." The influence of Lewis comes through in his high-energy performances, Williams says, but his songs get him to a different place. As he says, "It's Jerry Lee Lewis meets Jackson Pollock and Jerry Lee Lewis meets Joe Namath." "I will always revere Jerry Lee Lewis," Williams says. "Jerry Lee always likes to say he did everything in one take and I like that approach."

The Highlands Playhouse invites you to view the Vatican's art collection

The Highlands Playhouse would like to welcome you to the greatest art collection in history.

For the very first time Ultra HD film cameras have been allowed inside the Vatican Museums and Sistine Chapel, bringing never before seen art to theaters across the US just in time for the holiday season.

The Vatican Museums is a mega-production by a team of 40 professionals who travelled hundreds of miles in the cultural setting of the Vatican Museums while filming some of the most rare and precious works of art in the world, spanning all civilizations and epochs. Thanks to a combination of the cutting-edge techniques used for cinema by James Cameron and Tim Burton, audiences can now fully immerse themselves in the timeless masterpieces of art history. Admire the paintings of Caravaggio, touch Laocoön and the Belvedere Torso, and feel swathed by the figures in the Sistine Chapel.

From the outstanding artistry of classic statues to the Cast of Michelangelo's Pietà, right up to Fontana's modern sculptures; from paintings by Giotto, Leonardo da Vinci, Van Gogh, Chagall and Dali; from the extraordinary frescos in the Rooms of Raphael to the spectacular work by Michelangelo in the Sistine Chapel, theater audiences will experience the journey under the artful guidance of the Director of the Vatican Museums, Professor Antonio Paolucci, who expertly leads us through the past, present and future.

The program includes 22 minutes of insightful "behind the scenes" extra features, exclusive to theatrical audiences, as The Vatican Museums' Director, Professor Paolucci, the film's director Marco Pianigiani, and the director of photography recall both the challenges and the triumphs involved in the making of this masterpiece.

Highlands Playhouse is thrilled to be able to offer this piece of cinematic perfection to locals and visitors to the plateau. Tickets are only $12, which is much cheaper than going to the Vatican and will offer an even better experience than being there in person. Call the box office at 828 526 2695 or stop by 362 Oak St to reserve your tickets. You won't want to miss out on this special event.

Rotary salutes its veterans on Nov. 11

The Rotary Club of Highlands held its weekly meeting on Veterans Day, Tuesday, November 11th at noon at the Highlands Community Building. The format of this meeting was unlike any other. Instead of one featured guest speaker, in honor of the brave men and women who have fought to protect our nation's freedom, each member of Highlands Rotary who served in the armed forces stood up to share their personal experiences of their time spent in the military defending our country and our citizens. The stories and memories shared by these hometown heroes brought many a tear to the eyes of those in attendance. It was one of the most moving and heartfelt Rotary meetings in recent memory. There were other veterans in attendance who are not Rotarians.

Tourists Come and Tourists Go...

As November comes to an end and we settle into winter I reflect back on my years as a real estate broker and changes I have seen in this business as a whole.

When I was broker-in-charge at Harry Norman Realtors for seven years we had a storefront office with flyers of our listings taped on the windows for all to see who walked past – usually while licking an ice cream cone from SweetTreats!

Those days have been replaced by saavy buyers who go online and search properties before contacting us.

When I opened Pat Allen Realty Group and relocated to 295 Dillard Road, I realized that clients want privacy and a conference room where we can meet to develop a relationship. Our expertise of the market then kicks in. Buyers have legitimate questions and concerns and our responsibility as great brokers is to guide them through the entire process assuring a successful closing and sound investment.

There is a long check-list after the offer is submitted and accepted. We work with a home inspector, appraiser, banker (if a mortgage is involved), the closing attorney, utility companies and repairmen if so needed.

Buying or selling a home is an important financial endeavor and we take it seriously.

I had an investor who called last week and had bought several lots – sight unseen at an auction – and asked what price we can put on them.

Unfortunately he bought in an undesirable area that won't yield much profit and it will take a long time to secure buyers. So my advice? Please contact us first before purchasing for our opinion of what you are considering. We will guide you in the right direction. Auctions are risky to say the least!

This has been a great year for sales in the Highlands and Cashiers areas. I put three properties under contract this week and it is November! Keep looking online and when something piques your interest call us and let's discuss the area, price, condition of the home, and resale value. We are here to help and will use our experience and knowledge to help with your decision and investment.

The brokers at Pat Allen Realty Group wish all of you a great Thanksgiving... there is always so much to be thankful for. May your homes be filled with wonderful aromas, wonderful friends and family, and may love surround you all.

Holy - Days

By Pastor Dan Robinson

Highlands Central Baptist Church

I hope you will enjoy the holidays. Thanksgiving is next Thursday. Christmas next month. I like to reference these holidays, however, as holy-days. Indeed they are. American history verifies the first. Biblical history the second. And therein lies my burden. I wonder if you have felt the same?

In other words, in an increasingly narcissistic culture it is increasingly rare to find thankful people. If someone believes something is owed to them or that they deserve something, then a thankful heart is missing. I hope you're not like that. I hope you are thankful to a Holy God for giving you life and citizenship in this great country. Our liberty has been costly. It always will be. And it is worth the price. I encourage you to find a quiet place on Thanksgiving and deliberately articulate your thanks to our great God. Will you do that?

Then, a word about Christmas. Some in our culture still celebrate this day as the birth of Jesus Christ. Although the actual birthdate is unknown, the story can be found in Luke 2. This is the account of God becoming a man in the person of His Son, Jesus Christ. He came to live, die and resurrect. He did this to pay the penalty of sin incumbent on the entire human race. Incredible! What wondrous love is this O my soul?

John tells us that God loved us so much that He gave His only Son. So my encouragement to you is to give in Jesus' name this Christmas. Pray over the gifts you purchase and give. Pray over a financial gift to your church and mission agencies. It really is more blessed to give than receive. You'll have a great and constant battle on your hands however. Consumerism, frenetic schedules and "bigger is better" dominate the holiday advertisements. Nonetheless, you can move through those days with a deep seated peace. He is the Prince of Peace. If you don't know Him, He longs for you to meet Him. If you do know Him, He longs for you to know Him more intimately. May you be blessed and encouraged this holiday season. And experience great joy in the One who knows you the best and loves you the most.

Old Edwards Hospitality Group names Jack Austin as GM and Karen Rogers as Assistant General Manager

Old Edwards Hospitality Group announces the appointment of Jack Austin as General Manager. Jack is a proven leader in the hospitality industry with over 15 years in the field. Jack has served as Assistant Rooms Director at Old Edwards Inn and Spa for more than four years. He will fill the GM position as Brian Crook transitions out to return to his home country of England in February 2015.

Old Edwards President, Richard Delany, says, "Admittedly, it is very difficult to say goodbye to not only a great person as Brian Crook, but such a key member of the Highlands community and our Old Edwards family. We brought Brian in over six years ago to help establish a firm foundation for resort operations after the purchase and major renovation by Art and Angela Williams. And now, we are very fortunate to have Jack Austin already on our team and accepting the position of GM. The decision to move Jack Austin into the GM position at Old Edwards was, frankly, one of the easiest staffing decisions I have made in my career. With our foundation now firmly in place, we all look forward to seeing Jack expand his talents, leadership and creativity to help lead Old Edwards Inn and Spa into the next era."

Also announced is the promotion of Karen Rogers to Assistant General Manager. Karen moves into this position after six very successful years as Rooms Director. Delany says, "We hand-selected Karen when we first came to Old Edwards based on our association with her in the past. Karen has proven one of the most solid members of our management team, and we are thrilled to have her now step into the position of Assistant GM."

Delany goes on to say, "While we love to welcome new talent into the Old Edwards family, we always seek first to promote from within. We have a culture of recognition and reward for excellence in service, and we are very fortunate to have such stellar candidates to elevate into these new positions, allowing other up-and-coming talent within the company to grow and expand their careers with us as well."

The Highlands Playhouse will be celebrating the 75th anniversary of 'Gone with the Wind' in grand style on December 15.

Gone with the Wind is an epic tale of a woman's life during one of the most tumultuous periods in America's history: From her young, innocent days on a Georgia plantation to the war-torn streets of Atlanta, from her innocence to her understanding and comprehension of life and love. Based on Margaret Mitchell's Pulitzer-winning novel, Gone with the Wind won eight Academy Awards at the 12th annual celebration securing its place in American cinematic history.

The special event kicks off at 4 pm with a book signing and Q &A with notable historian and author Peter Bonner. Peter is the creator of the "Historical and Hysterical" tours in Jonesboro, GA, the site of Tara, where he combines historical stories and anecdotes with upbeat humor that delight and inspire audiences.

The Atlanta Journal Constitution describes Peter as a "walking, talking history lesson." Peter will stay and conduct a lecture at 5:30 that is sure to be a thrilling appetizer to the movie. He has also been gracious enough to bring a collection of antiques from the original set of Tara that will be on display.

The tone for the evening will be set by Bill and Vickie Scholz, who will be welcoming visitors dressed in period costume. The event will be topped off by a special screening of Gone with the Wind at 6pm on our 35 foot movie screen and state-of-the-art sound system.

We will have reserved seating for this event. Be sure to get your tickets in advance so you don't miss out on this special celebration. Tickets are only $15 per person. Stop by the box office at 362 Oak Street or call 828 526 2695 to reserve your tickets today.

About Highlands Playhouse (www.highlandspayhouse.org)

Highlands Playhouse is the oldest theatre in North Carolina. In the summer of 1938, a group of Highlanders presented a play for one performance in the Playhouse building. This production was "Dulcy," a comedy by George S. Kaufman and Marc Connelly. Encouraged by the audience's reception, the group formed the nonprofit Highlands Community Theatre, Inc.

The theatre itself was built in 1931 as an auditorium for the Highlands School. When the present Highlands School was opened in 1952, the Town of Highlands acquired the auditorium building.

Every summer since 1938, with the exception of two years during World War II, there has been a season of plays at the Playhouse. In the fall of 2013 a 35-foot movie screen and state-of-the-art sound system were added to the Playhouse to bring current and classic movies to Highlands residents and visitors.
