Mission Health offers a solution to customers dealing with BCBSNC's exit from its network

With Blue Cross and Blue Shield of North Carolina (BCBSNC) leaving Mission Health on Oct. 5, Mission has outlined a plan to help consumers with BCBSNC insurance coverage, including consumers with BCBSNC commercial insurance coverage and BCBSNC Medicare Advantage plans.

The absence of Mission

Health hospitals and physicians from BCBSNC's network may have serious financial, logistical and clinical access impacts on consumers who need vital healthcare services. It will also affect the many self-insured employers who pay for their employees' and dependents' care expecting access to

County OK's capital improvements for schools

Highlands School to get new cafeteria floor

When Macon County commissioners approved their 2017-2018 fiscal year budget, they included $600,000 for Macon County Schools for capital outlay improvements. The county allocates funds each year to the school district to address aging facilities and significant needs within the district.

This year, County Manager Derek Roland earmarked $300,000 for overall district capital outlay needs and another $300,000 for technology upgrades.

During the August meeting of the Board of Education, under the director of Superintendent Dr. Chris Baldwin, board members prioritized the district's capital outlay needs to identify

Eyes to the sky...waiting for the eclipse

Though the traffic and crowds predicted for Eclipse Monday fell short, a good time was had by all who experienced this rare sight. K-H Founders Park was comfortably full of locals and visitors who enjoyed the pre-eclipse and post-eclipse entertainment. Left is Colin Martorell taking no chances for eye damage. Above, it was a family affair for Heather Tejada and baby Troy Keener, Lauren Dalton, Kyle Keener, LeeAnn Hall, Tudor Hall, Anna Henry, Stephanie James, Hayden Tejada, Henry James and Avery James. All roads out of WNC, however, were heavily congested. Reports are it took seven hours to drive from Highlands to Atlanta Monday afternoon.

What Solar Eclipse?

By Dick Funsch
Highlands Writers Group

The day after the night before. My head ached. What was that bleary light seeping through my bedroom window. I glanced at my bedside clock....2:30.

It suddenly dawned on me. That bleary light was daylight. Good grief, I had slept half the dreary day away. Blame it on all those Bloody Marys' I had last night.

Nature called. I stumbled into the bathroom. When I came out to get dressed....it was dark, dark as night. My mind boggled. Did I doze off in the bathroom? I must have. My bedside clock read 2:35. I couldn't believe it....I had slept for 12 hours....in the bathroom! I must be in worse shape than I thought.

And now it was the middle of the night. Well, in that case, I might as well grab a little shuteye while I can. And I did, falling into a troubled sleep.

Overnight visitor spending in Macon County is up by 6.3 %

The Highlands Area Chamber of Commerce recently announced that visitors to Macon County spent $163.92 million in 2016, an increase of 6.3 percent from 2015 and ranking Macon County 30th among North Carolina's 100 counties.

"The Highlands area continues to see an increase in spending by visitors to Highlands and Macon County. This is a great vote of confidence for the rising popularity of our community and the plateau area in general," said Bob Kielytky, Executive Director of the Highlands Area Chamber of Commerce. Eclipse was awesome...even without the predicted crowds Did we over plan for the eclipse? Well maybe, or one could say we were well prepared for all possibilities. Folks did tend to "eclipse in place," and the predictions of huge day-tripper crowds did not materialize here.

I want to again thank all the volunteers and town staff that worked so hard to make the entire weekend a success. We kicked things off with another great Twilight 5K race and ended with a wonderful eclipse celebration in the park.

I've taken copious notes about how a community should prepare for the next solar eclipse. I will put them in the desk drawer for the mayor facing the next eclipse. For some reason I don't think I will be around.

So, now back to the routine business of the town. We will have the Community Coffee with the Mayor tomorrow, August 25, at 11 am at the Hudson Library.

Let me touch on a few topics to be covered at the coffee. First, I want to stress that these coffee events are simply give and take discussions concerning town issues. What I say or discuss is not necessarily town policy, but rather where I am on a particular issue at that point in time. Coal ash and broadband will be major coffee topics.

Highlands Mayor

Coal ash recovery costs by Duke Energy was a big agenda item at last week's town board meeting. Our energy consultant gave an update on where the town stands in regard to passing through Duke coal ash fees to customers.

In a nutshell, over the next three years the costs will be high since the NC Utility Commission has given Duke permission for retroactive recovery costs for the years 2015, 2016 and 2017. For the next three years these costs will be substantial before then leveling off for the remaining seven years of our ten-year obligation.

Also, the NC Utilities Commission has not given Duke Energy of North Carolina and Duke Progress Energy a final number as to how much cost they can pass on to consumers. I will attend a public hearing in Asheville on September 27. If allowed to speak, I will ask the commission to curtail and reduce the Duke request by half. I will also make the point that it is unfair for Duke retail and wholesale customers to solely shoulder these costs, while their shareholders share no costs.

I will also continue to discuss the progress town staff is making in identifying a private provider to partner with the town in creating a first-class fiber optic network. We have been meeting with multiple providers for several months. I am now very optimistic that we can create a public/private partnership that will be cost effective and quickly deliver this vital technology to our community. While the first priority will be to the residents of the town, in time the private component will be able to extend service beyond the corporate limits of Highlands.

Hope to see everyone at the Friday coffee!

Playhouse plans for the 'playhouse'

Dear Editor,

Speaking on behalf of the Board of Directors and staff of the Highlands Playhouse, I'm responding to recent questions regarding the Playhouse's future. My hope is to provide additional context to clear up any misinformation about the strategic direction of our non-profit organization known as "the Playhouse," as well as the historic auditorium that we currently call home.

Earlier this summer the Playhouse announced plans to move to an expanded and updated Martin Lipscomb Performing Arts Center (the "PAC") once the organizers of a capital campaign successfully raise $10 million for its construction. The Playhouse board would lease space from the PAC, and the new, state-of-the art facility would greatly enhance our programming while complementing existing PAC events. As we understand it, no start date will be set for construction until the full $10 million has been raised.

Of course, the announcement immediately set off community-wide interest in what might become of the Playhouse in the short- and long-terms. As a result, misinformation quickly seeped into casual conversations, causing confusion about the fate of the building and the offerings the Playhouse will provide.

First, the Playhouse building is owned by the Town of Highlands. While we do pay other operational costs, the Town lease es the facility to the Playhouse for $1 per year. Therefore, what becomes of the building – before and after our move – will ultimately be decided by the Highlands Board of Commissioners.

Secondly, it is the current intent of the Playhouse's board and staff to provide live, professional theatre in the summer and high-quality cinema year-round. That will not change before, during, or after our planned move to the PAC.

We fully support Mayor Taylor's call to open an official community discussion on the future of the auditorium and we expect to be an active participant in that process. Thoughtful study of the situation is required as we want to set goals and make decisions that are most advantageous for the parties involved.

Also in the mix is a proposal brought forward by a community member to renovate the auditorium and have the Playhouse continue to show movies there versus moving them to the PAC. This proposal needs to be considered and analyzed by the Town Board.

As part of a community dialogue, the Playhouse will examine our offerings. We want to ensure they are aligned with the current and future cultural needs of area residents and visitors. Please watch for an announcement soon regarding an open forum to be held to discuss the options. You'll hear in further detail our vision for the organization and have a chance to share your own. You'll also see an increased effort by the Playhouse to secure patron feedback (through surveys and ongoing flash polls) in an effort to further strengthen this amazing cultural asset which contributes greatly to our quality of life.

A Pet Peeve

Dear Editor,

Pssst! Here's a dirty little secret about Highlands. Not all of us think the tidal wave of wonderful, affectionate, adorable, slobbering, peeing, and pooping dogs is a sign that we love animals more or that, as a society, we're overall becoming more compassionate or caring. In fact, there seems to be an inverse relationship between pet and human suffering. No one wants a pet to suffer but, in truth, euthanizing pets is simply a part of a well-greased and profitable pet-industry that presents "shelter killing" as acts of compassion. In reality, almost 90% of America's dogs and cats are euthanized. Few die "naturally." Humans? A dog or cat frequently can receive instant and better medical attention around Highlands and Cashiers than a person, and, oh, yes, the pet food and supply aisles in many grocery stores now take up more space than delis that feed many quite ordinary day laborers. Look for yourself at Bryson's or Ingles.

If you go to the local farmer's market at Highlands Kelsey-Hutchinson Park on a Saturday morning, you carefully must step around almost as many dogs as you do their poop. In fact, every walk through the Park during a crafts festival or auto show is a test, a smelly Labrador here and a red-eyed Doberman hellhound there, all, of course, requiring constant vigilance. As much as I've watched and followed dogs and their owners around town, I have yet to see many pick up poop using "hand bags" provided. While some carry bags conspicuously around and, if closely watched, will even pick up some poop, most simply do not. All nature is their urinal. Then, too, why do dogs eat their own poop?

In Highlands, anything less than complete adoration of Caramel Frappachino, the cutest poodle of all, is simply taboo. It makes you a social pariah, someone who should be cast out of society forever. Still, to me, it's just a preference, not a symptom of a psychotic disorder. Actually, I imagine you can have a happy, healthy, normal family life without a dog or two around. In all this, I puzzle over why dog owners must carry their pets with them everywhere as if they're missing family members, putting them in cars on their laps and with their heads outside windows, taking them to every shop in town and to restaurants and cafes that welcome "doggy friends" where you must erect a fort of empty chairs to keep them at bay. To prevent this, many merchants place water dispensers and treats outside doors to dissuade dogs. Once inside, dogs, with their unpredictable behavior, frequently become wrecking balls.

Highlands obviously is as conflicted about the tidal wave of dogs as are most of us. Dogs are loud, often dirty, and they do smell no matter their care. When you reserve a stay at a motel or inn, you usually have "pet friendly" and "sorry, no pets" choices. Yet no matter how clean the room a dog smell or stain inevitably remains. Moreover, dogs need a great deal of attention and exercise, something that often

The Royal Pooch visits the lake

What a difference a year makes. Last summer, Mum wrote a column about a lake adventure with a bunch of guys from Dad's ROMEO group (Retired Old Men Eating Out) plus a few wives. They all went to lunch on a pontoon boat only to encounter the perfect storm on the way back to the dock. They survived the thunder and lightning and soaking and lived to laugh about the trip. Hopefully, since names were changed to protect the innocent, they laughed again when the story appeared in Mum's collection of columns, "The Ink Penn: Celebrating the Magic in the Everyday."

Kathy Manos Penn

This year, instead of the larger group, it was the Royal Parents and I who boated to lunch with our friends and their dog Gunny. Gunny is a miniature Poodle mix, about the size of my sister Puddin' the cat, and he's a bundle of muscle and energy. Honestly, he can jump almost as high as she can. He looks like a spring-loaded Energizer bunny as he goes boing, boing, boing leaping up almost shoulder height repeatedly.

I've never been on a boat, so this was a cool adventure for me. We meandered down the pathway to the shore and walked the gangplank onto the dock. I was a bit hesitant about the gap between the dock and the boat, but I took it in stride, so to speak, and boarded. I inspected the boat from stem to stern and anticipated a grand time.

I wasn't disappointed. Our captain fired up the engine and off we went, slowly motoring out of the cove to the main body of the lake. Picture me, the breeze ruffling my beautiful black fur and my royal nose held high to sniff the breeze.

When we arrived at the marina, I was delighted to find that we dogs were welcome in the open air restaurant. As is always the case when Lord Banjo makes an appearance, people oohed and aahed over me. Our waitress brought Gunny and me a big bowl of water, and our parents were impressed at how well we shared. It's no different than me sharing my water bowl with Puddin', so I'm not sure what the big deal was. I was hoping someone would need me to clean the floor of scraps, but no such luck. The restaurant floor was ship shape. Thankfully, our captain's is given inconsistently by owners. They're also expensive. Then, too, all of us should admit that dogs, like most pets, are simply captives and part of their obsession is eugenics. Unlike troublesome people, you can breed dogs to your needs and euthanize or "shelter" them when necessary.

While howls of protest from dog nutters surely will follow this letter, most defiantly and righteously asserting how friendly, necessary, comforting, loving, well-trained, and exceptional their pets are, remember Shakespeare's famous quote, "Methinks thou dost protest too much." Be assured that dog owners frequently are the worst abusers of all, a dirty little secret that underpins their assumptions of benevolence in their relationship with pets.

Highlands

wife brought some vegetarian doggie treats, which were delicious.

Mum tied my leash to her chair, but while she was chatting, I untied that thing and set off to meet the folks at a nearby table. I was just about to score a handout when our captain realized where I was. No worries, though. They all rubbed my head and exclaimed over my size and wonderfully soft fur.

Pretty soon, we headed back across the lake. I'm telling you, I could get used to a daily boat ride. I wonder what it would take to persuade Mum and Dad to purchase a Royal Yacht for Lord Banjo. I'm betting my Great Pyrenees ancestors accompanied the French kings up and down the Seine.

As we left, there was talk of a return visit, something about the dads kayaking while the mums recline on the dock reading. The Royal Pooch will be mightily pleased as long as he's part of the reclining contingent and there's a boat ride before the day's out. I've already penciled in a date on the Royal Calendar and requested a royal purple beach towel for the occasion.

Look for Kathy's new book "Lord Banjo the Royal Pooch" due out August 30 and find her collection of columns, "The Ink Penn: Celebrating the Magic in the Everyday," locally at the Molly Grace in Highlands and Books Unlimited in Franklin. Contact her at inkpenn119@gmail.com.

the Mission Health system.

As a result, Mission believes BCBSNC will likely pay a lower percentage of the out-of-network fees than they would pay for the same in-network services.

For Consumers

There are significant exceptions to the problems created by the expiration of Mission Health's contract with BCBSNC. First, state law prohibits BCBSNC from financially penalizing fully-insured patients when a participating provider is not available without unreasonable delay. This prohibition is critically important for patients and is a legally significant issue. Because Mission is the only provider of certain services within the region – including but not limited to heart surgical services, pediatric specialty services, high risk maternity services and others – it will be assisting impacted patients. Unfortunately, this state law does not apply to consumers with self-funded employer coverage.

Second, to reduce harm to consumers, Mission will provide a generous, prompt payment discount to the balance of a patient's bill after taking into account the patient's personal financial responsibility.

That discount will be applied when patients send their explanation of benefits (EOB) and any check received from BCBSNC to Mission Health within 10 days. This process is designed to manage any circumstance where BCBSNC may send benefit payments directly to the patient rather than to Mission Health as the service provider. This practice, already illegal in the majority of states in America, is something that BCBSNC has threatened to do.

Mission Health is encouraging patients to demand in writing that BCBSNC honor their assignment of benefits election so that they are not unduly burdened when they are sick or injured and Mission Health can respond to any BCBSNC errors.

For All Employers

The most important factor for every employer to consider is whether they will stay with BCBSNC after October 5 and lose in-network access to Mission Health or whether they will evaluate other highly competitive health benefit options that include Mission Health. Further, Mission Health will work collaboratively with any employer considering a switch from BCBSNC to another insurer to make the transition as easy and seamless as possible for them.

For Self-Insured Employers

Aetna, Cigna and Healthy State each offer new, previously unavailable and highly competitive alternatives to BCBSNC. This is important news in that the state law prohibiting BCBSNC from financially penalizing fully-insured patients when a participating provider is not available without unreasonable delay does not apply to self-insured plans. sured employer that intends to remain with BCBSNC will need to specifically direct BCBSNC to continue to pay benefits on its behalf as in-network if the employer desires to protect its employees during this transition time. A self-funded employer's plan is its own – and not BCBSNC's plan – so the employer controls what BCBSNC does on its behalf.

More details on all transition plans will be announced by Labor Day.

projects that are most needed throughout the district's schools and come in under the $300,000 budget.

Earlier this year, principals at every school comprised a list of projects or upgrades they would like to see at their school. From new carpet to new schools to bus garages, the comprehensive list totaled $14,651,862.20. From the principals' requests, the list was first narrowed based on needs and realistic timelines within the school year.

After the first round of narrowing down the district needs the board of education was presented with a list totaling $2,885,614. Of the $2.8 million in needs, the bulk was tied up in $1.6 million identified for an expansion of South Macon Elementary School. That item was the first to be cut this month since total needs were capped at $300,000.

South Macon will be considered later under a broader county infrastructure need assessment currently being conducted by the county.

Approved capital outlay requests ranged from $40,000 to replace the old red bleachers.

HCP's "Crossing Delancey" now at PAC

Three early "pre-eclipse performances" of the Highlands Cashiers Players' current play, Crossing Delancey by Susan Sandler were presented last week, but this week a "second" opening night on Thursday, August 24, begins the regular schedule of the play at Highlands Performing Arts Center, 507 Chestnut Street, curtain at 7:30 p.m. and a catered reception afterwards for cast, crew, and audience. The play then continues Friday, Saturday, and Sunday, August 25, 26, 27, and from Thursday, August 31-September 3. Evening shows begin at 7:30, and the two Sunday matinees, August 27 and September 3, at 2:30 p.m.

Crossing Delancey is a charming romance set in New York City. It has a first rate cast and is directed by one of HCP's most accomplished actor/directors, Ronnie Spilton, who has appeared in nine HCP plays and directed at least a dozen others, most recently performing in The Fox on the Fairway (2012) and directing HCP's one-and-only musical, A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum (2009).

Dr. Spilton, a former educator and actor in Atlanta, holds a Ph. D. in Communicative Arts, and established in Highlands a Youth Theater for the Performing Arts Center (PAC), teaching theater arts and directing student actors in a number of plays. In Savannah where she has a second home, Ronnie has directed plays there as a guest artist and also for Tybee Island's Arts Theater. When you see Spilton's name in connection with a play you can be assured it will live up to HCP's slogan—Good Plays Well Done.

The plot of Crossing Delancey concerns Isabella, a single woman who enjoys her career at a bookstore, and is in no hurry to get married. Her Bubbie (grandmother) wants her to find a good man and settle down, so she hires a matchmaker. The first candidate is Sam, a nice guy, owner of a pickle business, but Isabella is not at all pleased when she learns that Sam lives on the wrong side of Delancey Street. And besides she is besotted with a handsome but entirely self-centered older man.

Will any romance work out for this young woman? Come see and enjoy, Thursday through Sundays, August 24 – Sunday 27, and August 31-September 3, with evening shows beginning at 7:30, and the two Sunday matinees, August 27 and September 3, at 2:30 p.m.

But suddenly that “now-you-see-it-now-you-don’t” daylight was back again, oozing its way through my bedroom window, waking me from an uneasy slumber. I nervously glanced at the time: 3:00 o’clock.

What’s going on? Am I going crazy? I dozed off in the dark of night and now, a few minutes later, it’s the middle of the afternoon.... again.

It must be that damn clock. It has to be. Memo to self: buy new clock. On the other hand, it just may have been all those Bloody Marys.

Well, I’m not taking any chances....I’m buying a new clock and swearing off Bloody Marys. I don’t want to go through another day like this again.

Not in a hundred years.

Dreaded Due Diligence!

If you are on the seller's side of a real estate transaction due diligence is a nightmare for many reasons.

When North Carolina replaced the inspection clause in our offer to purchase and contract followed by a date for repair requests, the number of offers written and subsequently terminated increased dramatically! Let me explain.

It used to be that buyers requested an inspection as soon as we, the brokers, could get an appointment – usually within two weeks. Then we would fill out a repair request asking for some or all repairs to be done before closing. Another option was a credit at closing for an estimated cost of repairs. An agreement was signed by the buyers and sellers and we headed to closing.

The current situation is that buyers ask for a certain number of days for due diligence – typically we see 21-30 days, depending on the time frame required to get an inspection, survey, or contractor to estimate costs to remodel.

This may seem reasonable to a buyer but the clincher is that up until 5 p.m. on the final day of due diligence the buyers can terminate for ANY or NO reason and receive their earnest money back. This has ultimately taken the home off the market for 3-4 weeks and then when it shows active again in MLS (our multiple listing service), brokers and potential buyers are curious why it fell through and are likely to believe there is a major problem with the house.

Many times this is not the case. Some buyers simply change their minds...this is certainly not fair to sellers. I have seen this happen more than once and heard from a broker

Pat Allen
Broker-in-charge
Cell: 828-200-9179
Office: 828-526-8784

this week that his buyers had four homes in due diligence at the same time, trying to decide which one they wanted, knowing they can terminate three others!

This is totally wrong and should not be allowed! Sellers deserve better than that.

I urge buyers' brokers to explain due diligence at length and make it for the shortest days possible. I also encourage buyers to put themselves in the sellers' shoes and understand they are taking someone's home off the market and that time is of the essence.

spending represented a $583 tax savings for each Macon County resident in 2016. Meeting the demand for a quality vacation and second-home destination experience is quite rewarding for both tourists and Macon County residents."

Tourism impact highlights for 2016:

- The travel and tourism industry directly employs more than 1,330 people in Macon County.

- Total payroll generated by the tourism industry in Macon County was $29.26 million.

- State tax revenue generated in Macon County totaled $7.43 million through state sales and excise taxes, and taxes on personal and corporate income. About $13.02 million in local taxes was generated from sales and property tax revenue from travel-generated and travel-supported businesses.

Gov. Roy Cooper announced in May that visitors to North Carolina set a record for spending in 2016. The $22.9 billion in total spending represented an increase of 4.4 percent from 2015.

These statistics are from the "Economic Impact of Travel on North Carolina Counties 2016," which can be accessed at partners.visitnc.com/economic-impact-studies. The study was prepared for Visit North Carolina by the U.S. Travel Association.

"All eight economic development regions of the state had spending growth of 3 percent or more, and 96 percent of the state's counties saw direct tourism employment growth from 2015 to 2016," said Wit Tuttell, executive director of Visit North Carolina. "Tourism continues to be a major driver of economic development across North Carolina, which is the sixth most-visited state in the country."

Statewide highlights include:

- State tax receipts as a result of visitor spending rose 5.1 percent to nearly $1.2 billion in 2016.

- Visitors spend more than $62 million per day in North Carolina. That spending adds more than $5.1 million per day to state and local tax revenues (about $3.2 million in state taxes and $1.9 million in local taxes).

- The travel and tourism industry directly employs more than 219,000 North Carolinians.

- Each North Carolina household saves $497 in state and local taxes as a direct result of visitor spending in the state.

All this means that Travel and Tourism Commissions (TTC) and the Travel and Tourism Authority (TTA) are the recipients of higher than ever room tax proceeds in Highlands, Franklin and Macon County.

The 3% room tax lodging facilities collect and then send to the state – which is then distributed back to the county's TTCs and Franklin's TTA – can only be spent to promote travel and tourism in the respective areas.

According to Kietlyka, Highlands TTC has seen a 13% jump in room tax proceeds in FY 2016-'17 (July 1-June 30) over FY 2015-'16.

In 2015-'16 Highlands TTC received $503,627.25 and in FY 2016-'17 it received $566,855.58.

With more visitors coming to the area and straining the infrastructure of the county and its municipalities, a movement is afoot to amend legislation so room tax money can be used to benefit the needs of municipalities and not just Visitor Centers and Chambers of Commerce programs.

The greatest historical eclipse

Rector Jim Murphy
Christ Anglican Church

Writing on the morning of what has been titled, The Great American Eclipse, it is yet to be determined how it turned out. Will it be spectacular? Will it be a dud? Will the weather, as that regards viewing the “event,” cooperate? Will the predicted droves of eclipse “totality” seekers show up? Only time will tell. But, however it turns out, it will pale in comparison to The Greatest Historical Eclipse of all time. And all of us should know about this whopper of an eclipse. For it was and remains the greatest, the most magnificent, we’re talking way beyond supercalifragilisticexpialidocious eclipse, of all human history.

Here is how The Greatest Historical Eclipse took place: At the beginning of creation, on the very first day, as God’s Spirit hovered over the chaotic, watery mess that was the substance of the universe, the Almighty called forth light. Mind you, this was not the sun, moon and stars, they came on day four. No, this light was the pre-incarnate Christ, the Light of the World. Jesus admitted as much in John’s gospel, chapter nine. When you read the creation story, you discover that this uncreated light eclipsed the darkness that reigned over the earth.

Sometime later, the first man and woman, Adam and Eve, decided to disobey the Lord who created them. They sinned. The first humans brought into specific relief the wretched human condition. Their sin represented the epitome of selfishness in arrogating unto themselves mastery over creation. They wanted to be in the driver’s seat of the world, to have the full knowledge and power of God. Therein they broke the single command of the Creator. Furthermore, in so doing, they brought a curse upon the human race wherein our selfish, sinful tendencies became part of the ongoing condition of humanity. In a manner of speaking, the sinfulness of mankind “eclipsed” the light of Father God, as the darkness of sin occluded the brightness of innocence.

Flash forward thousands of years and that uncreated Light that was Jesus the Christ at the beginning of creation, was born into the world. The almighty God who is everything good—light, love, mercy and especially forgiveness—could not allow our estrangement from His holy presence to abide forever. His love demanded a way forward. A way to overcome or eclipse, if you will, the dark effect that sin had upon our relationship with Him.

At the time of his Incarnation, Jesus again resumed the role of being the light of the world. The shepherds saw his light, so did the heavenly hosts, the wise men, and his human parents. Eventually, the Lord’s disciples, along with many others, recognized him as the Light of the World. The purpose of Jesus’ life was now in the pro-ers at the football field at Franklin High School to $29,000 to purchase new storage units for Nantahala School, Franklin High, and Mountain View Intermediate. The capital outlay requests also include floor upgrades to the Highlands School cafeteria, Macon Middle School, and South Macon Elementary, while budgeting $150,000 for new windows at Macon Middle School.

After some debate, the board of education unanimously agreed to fund $83,000 for a new 66-passenger activity bus. With nine activity buses with over 100,000 miles on them and four with over 175,000 miles board members expressed concern about the safety of students, especially from Highlands, who have to travel long distances to compete in sports.

The bleachers at Franklin High School were nixed because there isn't enough time to complete the project prior to school starting Monday, Aug. 28.

Highlands School is set to see new flooring in the cafeteria, as the board of education approved $15,000 for the project.

Schools across the district will see technology upgrades paid for with recurring funds with a replacement schedule set to keep all schools up to date.

cess of accomplishing the the Father's will: the reconciliation of sinful humanity with the holiness of the Almighty. God himself provided a path for us to transfer our citizenship into the kingdom of his Light.

The Greatest Historical Eclipse took place on a trash heap called Calvary some 2,000+ years ago. At the moment of his death it seemed as though darkness and sinfulness would be a permanent part of creation. Yet in less than three days, Jesus' resurrection eclipsed that pseudo-reality. In the brightness of his resurrection, for the remainder of his ministry and to this day, the Lord himself stood/stands between sin and judgment for us. The Greatest Historical Eclipse the world can ever know was now a part of the history books. All that is required of us is that we make the decision to come out of the darkness, accept his divine eclipse, and step into the pure light of the world.
