Worker shortages even affect the town

Let me share some of the thoughts I am having related to town personnel and the challenges ahead. I don't have the final answers, the new board that will be installed in December will have to tackle these issues.

Like almost all businesses now, the Town of Highlands faces a potential worker shortage in the coming months and maybe years. This past year we have had a number of a veteran, highly experienced workers retire. And, they are not taking early retirement, for the most part they put in about 30 or more years of service to the town.

The town has to compete in the marketplace for skilled workers. For instance, a worker who has a CDL driver's license is now in very high demand. Local contractors and construction companies are willing to pay a high hourly rate for CDL drivers and heavy equipment operators. The town has this demand, too, in that in all public works areas we need personnel who hold at least the CDL-B license. For instance, we need all personnel on our sanitation crews to have a CDL to drive our trucks.

Related to this potential worker shortage is how to compete to recruit and retain quali-

Highlands Mayor

fied and experienced workers. Early in the year the town simply had to increase police salaries across the board because we were losing the retention battle to other municipalities. Our police chief has been working hard to address the problem with her and other officers putting in overtime patrol duty hours while at the same time actively recruiting new officers. The problem is that potential new officers have to undergo basic law enforcement training before hitting the road. If all goes as planned, the police department will be back to full staff by the first of the new year.

Getting back to sanitation, we are in a similar shortage of personnel situation. How do we solve this recurring problem in sanitation? Folks constantly tell me everything would be solved if we went to one day a week residential pick up. I fail to see how that is a solution. Does that translate to cutting the hours of our seven-person sanitation department to 32 hours a week? It's hard enough to recruit sanitation workers for a 40-hour week, much less reducing their time to almost part-time status. Cutting the number of workers would be perilous also, in that sanitation workers across the nation have very high workers' compensation claims and are frequently sidelined due to on-the-job injuries.

Others have suggested privatizing the sanitation department. That, too, could be problematic in that Highlands is a very small, isolated market. A company could operate here for a few years and decide to leave. There might not be any replacement providers. Would we then get back into the sanitation market? It would be tremendously expensive, if even possible. The long-term solution is to increase worker compensation which could mean rate increases. Currently, residential service is $20 a month for eight pickups. Honestly, we spend a whole lot more money on other services and conveniences here on the plateau and think nothing about it. Garbage removal and transporting it to a distant land fill over the mountains is an expensive proposition.

The new Town Board will be presented the results of a salary study that an outside agency has been conducting for the town this fall. Those results will help inform the board how and where to address the problem areas that I have described. The study might reveal other areas to address, too.

'Real' Real Estate

The late great Johnny Isakson, real estate entrepreneur and U.S. Senator from Atlanta, GA once said this:

"In the real estate business, you learn more about people and you learn more about community affairs, you learn more about life, you learn more about the impact of government, probably than other profession that I know of."

His statement could not be truer, and it puts the "real" in real estate. There's nothing in his comments about Zillow, pricing, buyers & sellers, or that famous realtor cliché "location, location, location."

Rather, Johnny mentions real things that really matter, like people, community affairs, life, and government.

People... the lifeblood of our business. If you're not a "people person" you may need to consider another profession. Most real, real estate Brokers admit this is the best job they've ever had, never feel like they're "going to work," are open seven days a week, their cell phones ring non-stop (even when they're silenced), and they drink a lot of coffee. It's because real people love doing business with real people. And, it's fun! In the words of Barbara Streisand "people who need people are the luckiest people." Real Brokers wear a lot of hats; Arbitrator, Counselor, Bartender, Peacemaker, Leaf Blower, Furniture Mover, and Chauffeur all in the interest of relationships with others.

Community Affairs and the Impact of Government ... the knowledge of things the way they are; the pulse of things to come; and the sharing about the beauty of being in Highlands amongst the nicest and most giving people in the world.

Deborah "Bee" Gleeson

Pat Gleeson

Christie's International Realty

Real, real estate Brokers are pretty much "know-it-alls" or are very good at saying "I'm not sure but let me find out." We are pros at getting you answers and information. Things like "How much does it cost to build here?" "How long will it take?" "What's with all the gravel roads?" "How do I get a reservation at restaurant?" "Who can winterize my house?" "Where's the best place to watch the Georgia game?" "Do you know a plumber?" "What's going on with short-term rentals?" and the number one asked question by visitors... "Can you tell me what time the Town turns on the waterfalls?" to which the standard answer is "May I get you directions to Gatlinburg?"

Learning about Life ... when Johnny said "you learn more about life" in the real estate business he wasn't kidding. Real, real estate is about living life to its fullest, loving and caring for others the way you want to be loved. You learn that life is short and none of us are guaranteed tomorrow. So, we all need to fly fish as much as we can, play more golf, take the time to say thank you to those who've helped you along the way, take up pickle ball and get to know a good orthopedic surgeon, and most of all be a friend to all you meet.

In closing, as I always like to say ... get to know a "real" real estate Broker (there's 311 of them between Highlands and Cashiers), tell them your story, and let us help you. It's what we do every day to stay young!

• Pat and Bee Gleeson are proud to be a team of "Helpers" and Real Estate Brokers at Christie's International Real Estate Highlands-Cashiers. You can reach us at 828.782.0472. Please stop by for coffee and conversation at 210 N. 5th Street.

'Hate' and 'Love' are both 4-letter words

Dear Editor,

I am deeply saddened by the need to respond to Pastor Mark Ford's Spiritually Speaking column entitled "Is God Guilty of Hate Speech?" on September 14 in Highlands Newspaper. I had hoped that we had moved beyond the hurtful rhetoric against the LGBTQ+ community, and it is disheartening to find that a Baptist minister in Highlands, North Carolina felt compelled to engage in such discourse.

My personal connection to this issue runs deep. When I was 15 years old, I learned by accident that my brother was gay. My father's reaction was to tell him to leave "his house" because he was a homosexual. My mother's heart shattered, and their marriage was never the same. My brother faced physical violence from heterosexual individuals and even lost a job due to his identity. Despite all this adversity, he exhibited a level of kindness and compassion that surpassed anyone I knew. He made it his mission to provide shelter not only to stray animals but also to people in need. Even during the last Thanksgiving of his life, while battling pain and liver disease, he cooked a meal for a homeless man living under a bridge in Macon, Georgia. Despite his intelligence, master's degree, and financial means, what truly mattered to him was helping those in need. After his passing, a woman shared how he had generously provided her and her daughter with free rent when they would otherwise have been homeless in Atlanta. When he passed away, our wonderful Humane Society took in the dogs and cats he had cared for, and I personally funded the painting of three of his dogs on their van in his memory and honor.

I also have a gay son, and I became aware of his sexual orientation when he was just 5 years old. His likes and dislikes of sports and other activities revealed clues. Even though his generation experienced greater acceptance, he struggled with it, ultimately turning to alcohol as a coping mechanism as a teenager. He later gave up drinking, but the societal hatred he faced as a gay individual was a harsh burden. He went on to earn a PHD in philosophy. No one should have to hide their true selves, especially when they have never harmed anyone.

One crucial fact missing from all these discussions, including the hate-filled letters to the Playhouse Board and others in town, as well as the Baptist pastor's comments, is that individuals who identify as gay or lesbian are born this way. Mothers often have an innate understanding, and there appears to be a genetic predisposition within families. It is unfathomable to me that these loving and compassionate individuals wake up one day and choose to be attracted to the same sex, knowing the hatred and discrimination they will face.

Look at the gay individuals you know and ask yourself if you truly believe they made this choice. They are inherently good-hearted and sensitive people who deserve the same opportunities as you and me. They do not choose their sexual orientation, and the high suicide rate among them is a stark reminder of the harm caused by societal prejudice. My gay friends are Christians. It pains me that a pastor would resort to such rhetoric, for God is love, and it seems that this sentiment is not always reflected in our actions. This reaffirms my pride in being a Methodist, who loves all and doesn't judge.

who specialized in shop and drafting.

"After months of advertising for a construction/drafting CTE teacher position, we unfortunately didn't receive any applications or expressions of interest," said Highlands School Principal Sarah Holbrooks. "It was then that we decided to reassess our approach and explore alternative avenues."

The idea of an agricultural science elective soon gained traction, especially due to the educational background and aspirations of Adrienne Watts, who was pursuing a related course of study. Watts has worked in the Macon County School System for the last two years and currently lives in Franklin with her husband Ethan and their two children, Caroline and Cooper. Watts enjoys growing flowers and vegetables, raising livestock, and volunteering with the Franklin FFA.

"I am excited to share my passion of agriculture by introducing this new local elective to Highlands School," said Watts.

Working in collaboration with Macon County Schools CTE director, Colleen Strickland, the plan for an agricultural science course began to take shape. Watts, now a certified vocational teacher, has been instrumental in creating and delivering this exciting new CTE course for students in grades 9-12.

During the first semester, students will delve into the fascinating realms of Horticulture and Animal Science, gaining invaluable insights into plant cultivation, care, and animal husbandry. In the second semester, the course expands to include Horticulture, Animal Science II, and Landscaping, allowing students to build upon their knowledge and skills.

Watts has been pivotal in developing the program from the ground up, incorporating various valuable resources and fostering strong community partnerships. Her dedication and efforts have made this program increasingly popular among the high school students at Highlands School.

"We are truly fortunate to have Mrs. Watts leading this initiative. She has done an exceptional job in building this program and making it an enriching experience for our students," said Principal Holbrooks. "This new course not only offers valuable educational opportunities but also aligns with the interests and needs of our students, contributing to their holistic development."

vacation, etc., the importance of following BearWise Guidelines; these guidelines protect people, their pets and our bears.

- PLEASE do not Feed Bears or leave any food outside or where you hike; don't leave food in your car, and lock your car doors at night.

- REMEMBER: Bears can smell food over a mile away; report anyone feeding bears- there is a stiff fine in Highlands for doing that! Bears don't hang around where there is no food.

- KEEP your dogs on a leash always, especially small dogs, to avoid your own loss & heartbreak. It happens!

- DO NOT put out Bird Seed; birds have enough food in the summer & fall without us! We love to hear birds singing, but cats love birds eating seed on the ground too! Birds may need food in the winter, so feed them then if you must.

- OUR town has declared that all homes in town must have a bear-resistant trash can. These have proven very effective. If you have too much trash so the top doesn't latch, take the excess to the Recycle Center on Buck Creek road....NEVER leave bags outside of the trash bin!!

- MAMA Bear: If you see some cute cubs, know that Mama is close by so beware!

If you have a close encounter with a bear, speak gently, stretch up tall and slowly back away. If you have one getting into trouble at home, yell at it and scare it away. See our helpful brochures at Hudson Library for more information.

All of these guidelines help to keep our bears & people safe from what could be aggressive behavior and other dangers.

Encourage bears to go back into the woods to forage for their natural foods...not in your backyard!

National Convention in Indianapolis, IN at the end of October.

FFA is a National Organization that is led completely by students. FFA's main goal is to make a positive difference in the lives of students by developing their potential for premier leadership, personal growth, and career success through agriculture education.

While Agriculture Science will be a new offering for Highlands, the course has been offered at Franklin High School previously. The elective expansion for Highlands is part of a district-wide move to provide more career-focused electives for students.

"We know college isn't the path for every student and it shouldn't be the only path," former superintendent Dr. Chris Baldwin said when Watts' position was approved earlier this year.

Rocky Horror Picture Show is live on stage at PAC through Oct. 28

it's campy, silliness! Not meant to be taken too seriously!

Rocky Horror is commonly referred to as a cult classic. People love the ridiculous and often campy performances of songs they have known for decades thanks to the popularity of the film. The original stage production and subsequent film and TV performances focused heavily on the spook and gore, making it a popular show choice for this time of year. I really wanted people to recognize the characters and the songs, but almost nothing else in this production. We have set the show in a sci-fi comic book. The goal is for the audience to feel like these vibrant characters are popping right off of the page. I tend to tell a lot of stories through color. This production has a dream team of designers that got right on board with this color saturated sci-fi comic book world, and together created a production of The Rocky Horror Show that is unlike any other and quite literally "out of this world."

Highlands was founded on tourism, and it has always been important to our economy. Our main industry is tourism/hospitality along with construction for second home owners.

I feel our growth is not inevitable. It has been planned for decades by people that invested their time and energy to create businesses that residents and visitors enjoy. This has resulted in increased revenue for the Town of Highlands with increased sales tax and property tax. This increased revenue should allow the Town to plan and budget for future projects and improvements.

John Dotson

Over the course of its history, Highlands has primarily been a "second-home" market. Only in the past 10-15 years has it been marketed as a "tourist destination."

The extensive promotion of our town has led to bustling sidewalks and traffic standstills. Organizations around town now provide venues and host events virtually every week, year-round to attract more visitors.

Over the past few years Highlands has been featured in: Southern Living, Travel + Leisure, This Is My South, Condé Nast Traveler, US News & World Report, and others...

We will never go back to the getaway Highlands used to be - when the sidewalks rolled up between Labor Day and Memorial Day - and local folks had to earn enough each summer to carry them through the winter. That is a good thing.

Tourism has the ability to do much good, but burgeoning tourism brings its own set of headaches - not the least of which are the environmental, economic and social impacts on our community.

When it comes to Highlands, the key question becomes: How much tourism is enough?

The answer to that requires thoughtful discussion and moderation by the people of Highlands.

Brian Stiehler

There is no question that more people are learning about Highlands and coming to the area. Overall, I think that is a good thing. Healthy, desirable towns will grow, and I think it is great for vibrant downtown area. However, the growth needs to be controlled and monitored to protect the real reason we all love this area - the natural environment.

One advantage we have is that we are landlocked to a degree. This 14-sq.-mile watershed is largely surrounded by National Forest with very few options for expansion. Because of that, I feel like we've seen more people buying existing homes and remodeling them to suit their needs. In my opinion, that is great for Highlands and great for our neighborhoods. However, I'm amazed at how much this town has changed in the 23 years I've been here, and I can't imagine what that perspective might be like from the eyes of a generational Highlander!

To that point, I am very concerned that we are losing a huge piece of what makes Highlands so special and that is the quality experience our residents and visitors have when they come to town. I think we need to focus on quality over quantity when it comes to marketing the Highlands area. The goal shouldn't be to fit as many people as possible in the town, and honestly, it's easy to feel like that's the case at times. We want to be sure that our businesses succeed and at the same time, maintain the quality experience we all want. We also need to be cautious that we don't outgrow our infrastructure.

As the town grows, more stress is put on these resources, leading to the increased need for maintenance and the need for expanded infrastructure. As one of your commissioners, I want to continue to be part of the conversation and solution to determine

Our Lady of the Mountains parishioners tithe their support for the Highlands community

Our Lady of the Mountains Catholic Church embraces the call to tithe and give thanks for the blessings the church has received by giving back to the local community.

Each year Parochial Administrator Father Jason K. Barone and the Pastoral Council identify four organizations that support worthy causes in Highlands and the surrounding area.

Special collections are taken at all weekend Masses in July and the funds are distributed to the designated entities to support their charitable work.

This year, donations totaling $5,662 were received to support the following agencies: Highlands Emergency Council (HEC) to help provide fuel for heating homes; Highlands Food Pantry for its Thanksgiving turkey dinner program; Highlands Literacy Council (HLC) to help fund the Dolly Parton Imagination Library, and Smoky Mountain Pregnancy Care Center (SMPCC) in support of its annual fundraising banquet.

Jeff Weller

Tourism in Highlands has transformed over the time that I have lived in Highlands full-time. During those 30 years, Highlands has transformed from a 7-8 month tourist town to a year-round tourist town. When I first arrived here, after the end of October, town essentially shut down. Second-home owners left and didn't return until the season started back the next year. Most all restaurants closed. Several inns closed. Most retail businesses closed. That seasonal aspect to the town made it difficult for some businesses to survive. During the past 15-20 years, even second-home owners started spending some holidays here and using their homes throughout the year. I'm guessing that continues more so today since businesses have been able to remain open during more or all of the year. In fact, most businesses are now able to stay open and even thrive the full year. As far as the business community is concerned, the growth has been a very good evolution to Highlands tourism. As with all growth, there are also downsides and challenges that come along as well. We are all aware of some of those challenges. From staffing shortages to access to restaurants, we have all experienced the growth in both positive and negative ways. As tourism continues, I would like to focus less on purely a numbers game on visitors and more on the quality of the experience while visiting Highlands. Whether it is for an event, golf, great dining/hotel or a simple hike through our beautiful natural surroundings, the quality of Highlands needs to be a strong part of the focus of our planning.

As we all know, Highlands is a very special place. It only makes sense, as more people experience Highlands, more people want to come back more often. Many times, to buy a home and become a part of our community. In many cases, more people want to come and simply visit frequently. Regardless of their plans, we all understand why they want to come. I've said this before and this subject is one of the very areas that needs to have better community involvement. There is no question that Highlands is growing. If we can get the year-round residents, the second-home owners and the business owners to be part of the discussion, we can responsibly and positively guide and plan that growth as we move forward. Our community is the greatest resource for this process. As we move forward, we need to all consider what we want Highlands to be while at the same time understanding where we started, where we have been, where we are and where we want to be in the future. I don't believe any one person has the answer as to what the final solution is moving forward. However, there is no doubt in my mind that the Collective Community holds the answers. I think the Town Board, the community leaders, the Chamber of Commerce, business leaders and individuals within the community can all collaborate to assure positive planning for the future. If in the end, if all of the stakeholders work together, the future of Highlands remains bright. I am focused on responsible planning and look forward to the future.

The secret is out about Highlands and I think town leadership should embrace this success and proactively work to mitigate issues that arise rather than resent or try to hide from it. People may naturally assume that I have a "tourist first" mindset when in fact I believe that the quality of life for residents should not be sacrificed for the desires of our transient visitors. Full-time or part-time residents who are invested in our community make Highlands great and unique. When making decisions, what is good for Highlanders should be the priority over what is good for the guest. However, I think that the two can live together harmoniously.

New restaurants, shops and other businesses are great for our community. They bring invested people as full-time residents, new experiences for locals, and ensure the continuous thriving economy that provides a livelihood employees and business owners can rely on. Activities throughout the year keep Highlands exciting for locals and encourage families to put down roots. These are also what attract people to choose Highlands as their vacation destination over and over. A place with fulfilled, thriving locals will naturally draw attention from more people and land us atop "Best of..." lists of publications such as Travel + Leisure. We should be proud of this recognition.

There is no denying that the increase in residents and tourists alike brings new issues to the forefront. Increased traffic, garbage, and strain on natural resources are just a few that come to mind. Leadership isn't just about avoiding problems for a smooth ride; it is mostly about navigating through the bumps in the road and problems that arise. Thankfully, with growth comes increased revenue. From FY 2015-'16 to FY 2021-'22, sales tax revenue for the town has increased 53% exceeding $1.5 million. The increased tax revenue alone is money that can be used to pay for additional police and sanitation force, increased wages for town workers, and improved infrastructure. As a member of the Town Board I would also seek to work with other agencies in town to come up with solutions to these problems. One example is 4th of July celebration in Founders Park. While this is a fun-filled celebration it can present garbage, safety and sanitation issues. Rather than discourage people from coming to Founders Park to enjoy the festivities I would work with Visit Highlands to provide added security, waste receptacles and portable bathrooms. I am eager to have conversations surrounding traffic on Main Street during peak hours and seek out potential diversions for this traffic without discouraging shoppers from patronizing Main Street businesses. Also, increased informational signage for parking throughout town might relieve frustrations of those who think Highlands has grown too much. Finally, I would like to see a joint effort between the Town and Visit Highlands/Chamber of Commerce to craft messaging and specifically targeting the type of visitor we want in our town. If visitors are looking for the comforts and known factors of chains and franchises, this is not your place. If visitors are expecting fast-paced experiences, try somewhere else. If you are looking for a relaxed getaway, connecting with kind people who appreciate our natural resources and live with a sense of gratitude, then we are your place.

Too many people move here and then want to lock the gate behind them. Highlands does not belong to us. We are merely stewards of the gift that is our town, community, and natural surroundings. I would strive to protect what it is for generations to come by keeping big business and development out, welcoming new small business owners and families, and encouraging continued marketing to attract new people helping our town continue to flourish instead of withering away.
